RUSSIAN PLANES AND WARSHIPS DELIVER BLOWS

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 4.—Russian planes and warships were declared today to have dealt smashing blows to German naval forces on three seas as the Red army battled fiercely against a new Nazi-power-drive toward the heart of the grain-golden Ukraine.

Overnight, a noon communique reported, fighting centered in the Bel Tserkov and Korosten sectors, where the Germans are driving a two-pronged attack toward Kiev, and in the Smolensk and Estonian areas, where the front apparently was more stabilized.

The communique said a Russian tank detachment smashed through German forces which were attacking a town identified only as "N" on the northwestern front, killing at least 1,000 Germans and littering a vast field with the wreckage of more than 100 German tanks and armored cars and quantities of field artillery.

Riding a cloud screen over Moscow, some Nazi bombers were reported to have broken through the blacked-out capital's defenses last night for the 11th raid in two weeks.

Some fires were started. But the Russians said damage to military objectives was prevented by fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns which went into action to get more showpieces for the open air museum of wrecked Nazi planes heaped in a Moscow square.

Two bombers were hauled to the heap after a raid Saturday night.

A Moscow midnight communique reported the latest of intensified air, surface-craft and under-sea attacks on German naval forces in the Arctic ocean north of Nor-

Pennsylvania Governor Has Short Time to Act on Remaining Bills

Must Approve or Disapprove 120 Measures in Next 10 Days; Truck Weight and Milk Inspection Laws Are Included

LOCAL OPTION VOTES

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—(AP)—Pennsylvania's chief executive had 120 bills confronting him today as he entered the final 10 of the 30 days allotted him to approve or disapprove the acts of the 1941 general assembly.

Two of the measures awaiting the signature or veto of Governor Arthur H. James provoked far more than the normal share of debate during the long session. They were measures to increase the weight of motor trucks from 39,000 to 42,001 pounds and to set up a seven-member state advisory dairy council to frame uniform statewide milk inspection laws.

Passage of the truck measure by the general assembly brought charges by Senator Anthony Cavalcante (D-Fayette) of the existence of a "criminal conspiracy," while the milk measure was attacked by city health authorities as detrimental to public health.

Farmer-proponents replied that it would do away with the "multiplicity" of inspections that now confront them.

Two measures dealing with parole also are before the governor. One would appropriate $25,000 for an investigation of the systems used in Pennsylvania and other states. The other would set up a state parole board with a $400,000 appropriation and give it wide powers.

While Governor James entered his final period on legislation, Pennsylvania voters entered their last week to registed for the September 9 primary. The deadline is August 9.

Included are approximately 140,000 Pennsylvanians in the nation's armed forces who will be able to exercise their right of franchise under bills signed last week by the governor. They, too, must make arrangements to cast their ballots by mail before the August 9 deadline.

Miss S. R. M. O'Hara, secretary of the commonwealth, said copies of the new legislation and a special bulletin on military ballots will be sent to the 67 county election boards immediately. She urged that service men desiring to vote get in touch with their county election boards at once.

Competing with the judicial races for prominence at the primary are local option ballots in 81 communities. A year ago 500 referendums were held.

QUARRY WORKER ADMITS ATTACK ON DRUG CLERK

NO FORMAL CHARGES

Lock Haven, Pa., Aug. 4—(AP)—Police authorities announced today that a 33-year-old quarry worker admitted he grabbed Mrs. Georgette Welty, a 23-year-old drug store employe in an alley last night —the fourth young woman to be molested here since mid-June.

Solution of the fourth attack case was announced by Sheriff D. Edward Grenoble, Chief of Police Martin J. Peters, and Detective Sergeant R. O. Parsons, of the state police after questioning the man in jail.

They said placing of a formal charge against him would be deferred until the return of District Attorney Barrett Haag, now out of the city.

The officers said that Mrs. Welty gave Deputy Sheriff Glenn Adams a description of the man, which enabled them to arrest him, and that she later identified him.

Mrs. Welty was taken to a hospital for treatment for shock and later released. Attendants said she was not otherwise harmed.

Mrs. Welty has been working in Lock Haven for about three months. Her home is in Williamsport.

The attack occurred in an alley near the center of the business section. The young woman told police she sensed some one was following her as she took a short cut to the drug store to go to work and turned around just in time to meet her assailant.

Breaking away after a brief scuffle in which her shirtwaist was ripped, she fled to Bellefonte ave-

CHARGES ARMY DESIRES TO SEND FORCES ABROAD

FILIBUSTER THREAT

Washington, Aug. 4—(AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) charged today that the Army was waiting for the pending service extension bill to pass so that it could offfer legislation authorizing the use of selectees and Guardsmen outside of the western hemisphere.

The Montanan, long a foe of administration foreign policy, said he was agreeable to a prompt vote on the extension bill, but he promised an energetic opposition filibuster against any subsequent proposal for use of the men beyond hemisphere confines.

In raising the hemisphere issue Wheeler sided with Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the Senate naval committee who also contended that the Army had such plans.

Wheeler and Walsh were challenged by Senator Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, who informed reporters that, to his knowledge the army was contemplating no such request to Congress.

Walsh, in a statement asserted that Congress did not know whether the Army was being created for defense or for aggression. He said further that the high command wished to lift the existing hemisphere restriction and that "the omission of this request from the pending resolution does not mean that the idea has been abandoned."

Walsh declared that this proposal "has merely been postponed to quiet opposition" against the pending legislation.

The bill, as drafted, would empower the president to extend indefinitely the service of regular enlisted men, selectees, reservists and National Guardsmen until such time as Congress terminates that authority.

However, a majority of the Sen-

ORDER STRIKERS BACK TO WORK IN FOUR PLANTS

By the Associated Press

AFL unionists of 4 midwest ordnance plants were ordered back to work by their union officials today after Saturday and Sunday "holidays" which a union chief described as occasioned by misunderstandings.

Members of some locals at munition plants in St. Louis, Kansas City and Plum Brook and Ravenna, Ohio, failed to report for work after the War Department notified them their overtime pay henceforth would be time and a half instead of double.

John Coyne, president of the AFL executive council for the building trades department, said the workers would be back on the job today in conformity with a July 22 agreement between his division and the War Department making time and a half a uniform overtime rate for such unions.

Elsewhere there were these week end labor developments:

Tampla, Fla.—The Gulf Coast Metal Trades Council (AFL) ratified a two year wage agreement covering ten gulf coast shipyards. The pact would give the workers an average ten per cent pay increase.

Newark, N. J.—Members of CIO's Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, overriding a secret ballot of last week, accepted a proposal by the defense mediation board for a contract at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Kearny, N. J. The union, which claims 14,000 members in the plant, accepted a modified union shop, vacation adjustments and a 12 per cent pay raise.

ESCAPED YOUTH IS CAPTURED IN PHILLY

Philadelphia, Aug. 4—(AP)—George Clark, 19 one of two youths who escaped from the new Pennsylvania Industrial School at White Hill a week ago, was captured today by Philadelphia police.

The other youth, Waverly L. Browder, 20, of Roxborough, gave himself up voluntarily Friday.

Clark was taken into custody at 2 a. m. at the home of an aunt. Detectives said he would be returned to White Hill at once.

In making their escape, the first from the new institution, the youths slugged a guard on the head. The guard was in a hospital for several days.

GASOLINE BLACKOUT OBSERVED

Most Pennsylvania Motorists Accept Cheerfully Stoppage of Sales from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m.; No Official Judgment of Success or Failure of Plan from Washington

FEW OPEN TO SERVE COMMERCIAL TRADE

By the Associated Press

A few Pennsylvania motorists grumbled over inconvenience—but most of them accepted cheerfully last night the beginning of a stoppage of gasoline sales from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m.

Except in a few cases, the 14,031 gasoline stations across the state closed promptly at 7 p. m.

By agreement retail dealers associations a small number of stations remained open to supply fuel for motor freight trucks, taxicabs and emergency vehicles such as ambulances. It was estimated that 2.5 per cent of the 5,800 stations in the Philadelphia area stayed open to fulfill such needs.

IT CAME TOO LATE

Dunkirk, N. Y., Aug. 4—(AP) —For three weeks Stephen Jozwiak, manager of a Central avenue gasoline station, anxiously awaited arrival of a new electric sign to advertise his products at night. The sign finally came—just as Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes requested stations to close at 7 p. m. Jozwiak sadly complied.

As in other eastern states, many motorists made sure of filling their tanks before the stations closed, and in addition some took along extra five-gallon cans of gas.

Throughout the eastern seaboard, a welter of sectional reports, in the absence of any official judgment as to the success or failure of the first gasoline curfew appeared today to boil down to these points:

1. Virtually all service stations from Maine to Florida (except for half of New York City's independents) complied with Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes' request to close from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. daily as a national defense measure to conserve gasoline.

2. The day-time sale of gasoline everywhere along the eastern sea-

104TH CAVALRY ENROUTE SOUTH FOR MANEUVERS

Indiantown Gap, Aug. 4—(AP)—A long line of 104th Cavalrymen—riding scout cars and motorcycles instead of horses—were en route today to the scene of war maneuvers in Caroline county, Virginia, approximately 221 miles away.

First units of the cavalry left this reservation at 11 p. m. (EST) last night and 15 minutes later the last vehicle pulled out of the reservation on the southward trek. Officers said everything went off "right on schedule."

Accompanied by an escort of the state motor police, the unit commanded by Col. Albert H. Stackpole, Harrisburg, proceeded directly to the capital before swinging south toward their camp near Bowling Green, Va.

Scheduled to leave several hours after the 104th was a special detachment taking twelve 75mm cannon to the 28th Division's anti-tank battalion, which left camp Saturday for maneuvers which will last until September 9. Two officers and 40 men were detailed to take the artillery south to augment the 36 wooden 37mm cannon with which the outfit is "armed."

The "blitz-busters" are due at Camp A. P. Hill, near Bowling Green, some time today.

The 1100 men and 200 vehicles under the command of Major Carl Peters, Bradford, reached their first bivouac at Middleburg, Va., safely.

Comprising the 104th outfit were the headquarters troops and the second squadron, comprised of D,

EXPECT BIGGEST TAX BILL TO BE APPROVED TODAY

President Appears to Have Strengthened Chances for Elimination of Joint Income Tax Return Provision in Act

PROPOSALS REJECTED

Washington, Aug. 4—(AP)—Passage by nightfall of the $3,529,200,000 tax bill, stiffest in national history, was the goal of House leaders, but President Roosevelt appears to have strengthened chances for elimination of the provision requiring all married persons to file joint income tax returns.

In an eleventh-hour appeal to the House ways and means committee, the chief executive suggested three changes in the revenue measure, including modification of the joint return provision so as to exempt income actually earned by either husbands or wives, but the committee rejected all three proposals by "decisive majorities."

Nevertheless, informed legislators forecast that as a result of the president's action, the already strong opposition to the joint return provision could count on picking up additional votes.

Mr. Roosevelt also suggested committee revision of the excess profits tax so as to hit certain types of wealthy corporations harder and the lowering of existing individual income tax exemptions from $800 for single persons to $750 and from $2,000 for married persons to $1,500.

However, the House has already agreed upon drastic parliamentary procedure for consideration of the bill and this will conclude direct action on any of the president's suggestions. Under the rule adopted, the only amendments that can be voted on are those recommended by the ways and means committee.

The one exception is the agreement for a separate vote on the joint return provision, but here the rule allows only acceptance or rejection—not modification, as Mr. Roosevelt suggested.

Informing the president of the committee's decision to make no further changes in the bill, Chairman Doughton (D-NC) said he had been "very greatly surprised" by the executive's criticism of the

SOLDIER IS KILLED IN GUARDHOUSE RIOT

Fort Knox, Ky., Aug. 4—(AP)— A soldier was wounded fatally in a guardhouse riot here Wednesday night in which guards were forced to turn a fire hose on 350 milling prisoners after several rifle shots fired over their heads failed to restore order.

Death of Pvt. Carl B. McClellan, 19, of Bicknell, Ind., was disclosed yesterday by Col. N. Butler Briscoe, post commander, as funeral services for the youth were held at Bicknell.

Colonel Briscoe said McClellan was struck in the left shoulder by a ricochetting bullet fired by one of the four guards.

Ballistic tests will be made on the guards' rifles to determine which fired the fatal shot and the man responsible will be tried on a manslaughter charge by a military court, the colonel said.

Squadron Including Capital Battleship Warspite Reported Sighted in Gulf of Siam, Presumably Countering Japan's Thrust into French Indo-China; Halt Japanese Shipping

LINERS PREPARE FOR SPEEDY DASHES HOME

By the Associated Press

A British naval squadron including the 30,600-ton battleship Warspite was reported without confirmation today to have been sighted in the Gulf of Siam, presumably countering Japan's thrust into French Indo-China and toward other bases within striking distance of Britain's great fortress of Singapore.

At the same time, Japan was reported to have taken an ominous new step in the Far East crisis by cancelling all steamship departures for the United States, leaving about 600 American citizens stranded in the island empire.

Warspite, if it is actually in Asiatic waters, is the first capital ship the British Royal Navy has sent east of the Suez in many years.

There was no immediate explanation for the Japanese action in suspending steamship communication with the United States.

Simultaneously, the Japan Times and Advertiser, organ of the Tokyo foreign office, said the Japanese government next week was likely to invoke a complete national economic mobilization to cope with United States and British economic pressure.

POTOMAC TAKES PRESIDENT ON WEEK'S CRUISE

New London, Conn., Aug. 4—(AP)—The White House yacht Potomac rode the Atlantic ocean today, carrying a sea-loving president on a vacation cruise.

President Roosevelt was free to get into old, loose clothes and a battered hat, and to fish, read or nap, as he pleased.

The movements of the Potomac were screened in secrecy after the chief executive was piped aboard at the naval submarine base here last night and she sailed away for a week or 10 days on salt water. The White House had asked that press and radio refrain from reporting the boat's position.

A special train which brought Mr. Roosevelt from Washington to New London was moved to Boston and held there so he could hurry back to the capital should world events dictate that the cruise be cut short.

Talk of Major Shortage of Sheer Hose Is Decried by Manufacturers

BY ED WEGMAN

New York, Aug. 4—(AP)—Some hosiery manufacturers today decried talk of a major shortage in sheer stockings within the next year or so, but differentiated between "sheer" and "all-silk."

One large silk stocking producer said categorically "there will be no shortage of sheer wear for the women of this country."

He estimated that under present conditions the supply would be sufficient for at least six months. The supply could be made to last at least two years, he pointed out, however, by altering silk content and production methods.

Lee I. Robinson, president of the Robinson Hosiery Mills, said the government order freezing stocks of raw silk left hope for hosiery men, since most large mills had at least a four weeks' supply in their plants. Silk in the hands of throwsters, the men who process the baled silk as it is received in this country, making it ready for spinning, totals another five or six weeks' supply, he said. In addition, there are huge stocks of hosiery in the warehouses of both manufacturers and retailers, accumulated during recent price fluctuations.

MEADVILLE MAN ARRESTED AFTER DOUBLE THEFT

William Bagen, 21, of Meadville, was arrested early Saturday morning by Private B. A. Reeder of the local barracks of the state motor police, following an all-night escapade during which time he stole a truck and car, damaging both, and also robbed George's Gas Station, Meadville, where he is employed, of the entire receipts for Friday.

Bagen is reported to have visited a tap room, after which he stole a Pepsi-Cola truck in Meadville and drove to Oakland Beach, Conneaut Lake, where he had an accident with the vehicle. Returning to Meadville, Bagen is charged with the theft of the day's receipts from the gas station and also the theft of a 1939 Buick sedan, owned by Harold Braymer, Meadville.

Allegedly headed for Boston, Bagen headed for Warren and picked up a hitch-hiker, James F. McGee, of Chandlers Valley, just east of the Glade bridge.

Just west of Roystone Bagen hit a culvert and plunged into a ditch, completely demolishing the Buick and badly injuring McGee, who is reported to have received several broken ribs and internal injuries.

At a nearby gasoline station, Bagen was arrested by Private Reeder. He was turned over to the Meadville police to answer two charges of burglary.

McGee was treated at home.

A short time later, police said, the man came out of the alley and told on-lookers that he had seen the attack and knew who did it. Becoming suspicious of his actions, several youths trailed him while others called city police who arrested him several blocks from the scene.

Adams and Sheriff D. Edward Grenoble were joined in the questioning of the suspect by Detective Sergeant R. O. Parsons of the state police, who came here Saturday following an attack on Miss Emily Williams, 28-year-old summer student at the Lock Haven State Teachers College.

The Jersey Shore student suffered a fractured skull Friday night when she was struck down from behind while walking along a darkened street.

ate military committee agreed to have the legislation provide that no man would be held longer than 18 months beyond his original service period.

This 18-months proposal failed to find any favor with Wheeler or fellow foes of the bill, and Wheeler announced today that the opposition forces would fight any extension longer than six months.

Outside of making a fight for the shorter limit, Wheeler indicated he had little hope of forcing any other changes in the extension bill.

Congresswoman Rankin Still Stands on Her "No" of 1917

Anti-War Then, She Now Fights Intervention

By NEA Service

Washington, Aug. 4—Jeannette Rankin, first woman ever elected to congress, is back again—strangely silent this time. None of the lady lawmakers go in for oratory, but old-timers expected Miss Rankin to have plenty to say about administration measures to aid the Allies.

Her last congressional term was served from 1916 to 1918, and she is best remembered as one of the members of congress who voted against American entry into World War I. When the vote came in the house, she broke down and wept, while her male colleagues, looking helpless and embarrassed, waited for her to compose herself and miserably utter one word: "No."

VIEWS ON WAR HAVEN'T CHANGED

That "No" retired Miss Rankin from congress for 22 years, but her views haven't changed. With World War II less than a year old, Montana sent her back here.

She says: "More than half the voters in my state—53 per cent—are women. When women want something badly enough, they will organize, and when they do, they're more effective than men. Of course I got more than 53 per cent of the votes, so it was men and women together that elected me. But don't forget—women are organized."

Her biography in the Congressional Directory, 77th session, is the briefest in the book: "Jeannette Rankin, Republican of Missoula, Montana, elected to the Sixty-fifth Congress in 1916, and to the Seventy-seventh in 1940." That is wonderfully restrained in a book where most people go on and on about themselves.

Restrained, too, so far as speech-making goes, she is working hard as ever for peace, and non-intervention, behind the scenes. As she puts it, "I have a couple of things up my sleeve."

SHE DOESN'T LOOK LIKE A CRUSADER

To enter or not to enter World War II may be the question before the house this year. If it is, Jeannette Rankin can probably be counted upon to become as vocal again as she was in the crusade for women's suffrage and against entry into World War I.

Miss Rankin doesn't look like a crusader. She has white hair, worn in a fluffy pompadour, a very quiet voice and a smile that spreads upwards in her long, slender face and lingers around her eyes.

Her office is severely business-like. She says it's going to stay that way: "This is a business office—not a parlor."

board exceeded the total volume of an average August Sunday's daytime sales.

3. Traffic was just as heavy and in many places heavier than usual during the after-dark hours.

Stranded cars were numerous in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut and in some cases motorists hired horses to haul their stranded gasoline buggies.

New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, the Carolinas, Virginia, Georgia and Florida reported similar experience.

The surfew was observed quietly in the northwestern oil-producing counties. Petroleum dealers in the Bradford region, which produces more than 37,000 barrels of crude oil daily, pledged full cooperation. Bradford's oil is sent to the eastern seaboard, although some is refined there for local consumption. Most of the Oil City area output, about 3 to 4 per cent of the nation's, is used in the manufacturing of lubricating oils.

Some filling stations posted signs such as the following:

"For national defense this station will be closed from 7 p. m. until 7 a. m."

Rose Isenburg, 24-year-old registered nurse from Clearfield county ran out of gas in Pittsburgh while enroute to suburban Bellevue to attend a sick person. Police quickly arranged with a service station to furnish her enough gas to reach her destination.

In Philadelphia, a honeymooning couple on a motorcycle ran out of gas. Some motorists complained about lack of rest rooms. Lancaster and Hazleton were among eastern cities reporting a 100 per cent shutdown.

Dry tanks stranded five motorists in Fayette county. One man, who managed to reach a service station before his car sputtered to a stop, went to sleep in his car there, saying he'd wait for the 7 a. m. opening. Another man said he'd heard reports of the impending curfew, but didn't think they meant it."

All gasoline stations in the county closed at 7 p. m. last evening in compliance with the request last week of Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes for 200,000 stations on the eastern seaboard to close at seven o'clock each evening and not open before 7 a. m., effective starting yesterday.

Though Warren county was not within the radius, station owners all decided upon co-operating with Ickes and closed their stations also.

Motorists in the county were careful for the first night of the new arrangement, state motor police and two local garages reporting a number of cars seeking gasoline stations that were open, but receiving no calls from motorists completley out of fuel.

Whether or not the warning that gasoline stations were to close kept car owners on the alert for the first night remains to be seen, but if drivers co-operate as well as they did last night, there will be no difficulties encountered.

The Army's XP-51 is the first airplane in production which has the laminar flow wing. The design of the new wing is secret, but it is known that the approximate potential speed increase is close to 30 per cent.

At San Francisco, the $15,000,000 Tatuta Maru discharged the last of her $2,500,000 cargo of raw silk with emergency longshore crews working around the clock, rushed aboard 1,000 barrels of fuel oil and a ballast cargo, and sailed for Japan.

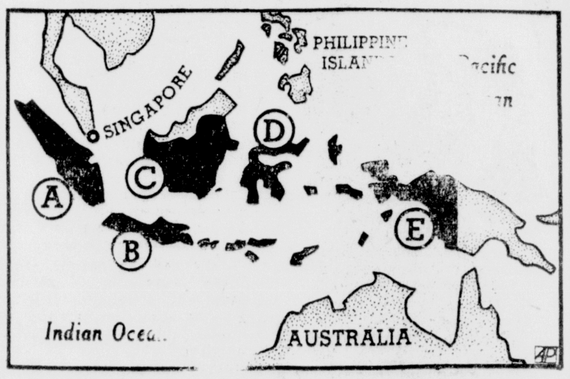
A Japanese tanker had previously sailed from San Francisco empty, the second to leave the United States without cargo.

At Seattle, the S. S. Heian Maru also piled her raw silk on the docks and was posted to sail as soon as loaded.

At sea, the Asamu Maru, which left Honolulu Friday with 140 American passengers and a $3,000,000 cargo of raw silk, maintained radio silence, under orders from Tokyo.

Dispatches from the Far East said departure of the Hikawa Maru, the Nitta Maru and other Japanese ships scheduled to sail for the United States had been postponed indefinitely.

Your News Test On The EAST INDIES



1. You see on the map the fabulous Dutch East Indies, troubled crossroads of the Far Eastern world. The principal islands are lettered. Can you name them?

2. (A) What is the capital of the Dutch East Indies? (B) On what island is the capital located? (C) Where are the East Indies with respect to the equator? (D) Locate the Strait of Malacca. (E) What are the Spice Islands?

3. (A) The Dutch East Indies recently denied Japan large supplies of what commodity extremely useful to a nation at war? (B) On what natural resource of the Indies has America been the most dependent in recent years?

4. Which, if any, of these men would you say deserved mention in a history of the East Indies—Captain Bligh of the "Bounty," Capt. James Cook, Magellan, Sir Francis Drake?

5. If you were to fly due south from Toyko you would in time come to (1) the second largest island in the world. Then, if you turned west and flew 2,500 miles, veering slightly to the north, you would reach (2) one of the world's greatest naval bases. Next, if you took a few more hours and flew to Brunei, you would find yourself on (3), third largest island in the world. Finally, if you hopped on across the Sula Sea, you would reach (4) good old American soil. Identify (1), (2), (3) and (4).

Each part of the first and second questions counts 4 points; each part of the third counts 10. The fourth counts 20, and each part of the fifth, 5 points. A score of 80 is very good; if you get 90 you're a real geographer.

The program opened with a song and devotional period lead by Rev. Dwight Jack, the pastor of the local church.

A vocal solo was sung by Miss Barbara Knapp with Mrs. Kenneth Chrispell, of Jamestown, N. Y., as accompanist. Mrs. Chrispell also accompanied the other numbers of the program.

At the close of this little service Miss Reba Metzger sang a musical interpretation of the Lord's prayer and Rev. Mr. Reed pronounced the benediction.

The co-operative dinner was served on long tables in the lawn and decorated in patriotic colors.

A number were present from the Irvine Methodist society and in addition to those mentioned on the program from Jamestown were Mrs. Anderson, president of the Brooklyn Heights W. S. C. S. and Mrs. Wheeler.

The Youngsville horse show committee met this week and plans were made looking toward a very fine show at the community fair the first week of September.

The committee from the Many Trails Riding Club is working with the regular horse show committee to make Friday evening, Sept. 5th, particularly interesting for local horse owners and riders. Saturday, Sept. 6th, the general horse show will dominate the day's program.

While it took us a week to reach San Francisco on our transcontinental bridge tour, we were not disappointed by the caliber of bridge played at the Pacific Bridge Week Tournament. Waldemar von Zedtwitz agreed with Mrs. McKenney and me that the defensive play in the tournament perhaps reached a higher standard on the average than in any other section of the country.

The stars of the first half of Bridge Week in San Francisco were Christine Arden and Jack Ehrlenbach of Los Angeles. They won the mixed pair championship, and with Marian Kaiser and Lou Mathe, they won the mixed team-of-four. They were also runners-up in the open pair championship.

Here is a nice defensive hand that helped Miss Arden win the mixed pair event. Ehrlenbach (East) won the opening lead with the ace of hearts, and South won the second with the king. Declarer cashed two top trumps, then shifted to the queen of diamonds.

This same situation was reached at several tables where South played two or three spades. In all other cases declarer made three, losing only the three aces and the king of diamonds. The defenders could find no way to develop two club tricks before dummy's diamonds were established.

But Miss Arden (West) allowed the queen of diamonds to ride to East, who took with the ace. Ehrlenbach led the deuce of clubs and South played the three. This is where Miss Arden made a fine play.

She followed with the queen, forcing dummy's king. Then she took the next diamond lead with the king and led the queen of hearts. South ruffed, but now had no entry to dummy. He had to lead away from his clubs, losing two tricks in the suit, and his score of 110 on the board was low.

BLACK WALNUTS GROW THRIFTILY IN THIS STATE

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—That black walnut trees are thrifty growers when planted on favorable sites is evidenced by measurements recently made by the Department of Forests and Waters, according to Chas. E. Baer, deputy secretary.

M. W. Nace, McConnellsburg, Fulton county, purchased 200 black walnut tree seedlings from the department in the spring of 1921, and planted them in a field near his home. The soil was fertile and had an under layer of limestone. Because of a large number of black walnut trees growing in the immediate vicinity, he decided to establish this plantation.

After twenty years about half the original trees remained, and these have an average height of over thirty-five feet. The average diameter at four and one-half feet from the ground is approximately five inches. Larger trees are six inches in diameter and thirty-eight feet in height. Two of the trees produced six bushels of large-sized nuts during the fall of 1940.

Two plantations of black walnut trees in the Mont Alto State Forest, Franklin county, are making very satisfactory growth. After twenty years of growth, this stand was improved by the removal of many trees of inferior form. Thirty years after planting, the dominant trees have an average diameter of approximately nine inches and are forty-seven feet tall. A similar plantation was made in 1914, and measurements made twenty-five years later, showed that the volume consisted of thirteen cords of wood per acre. Some of the trees were over five inches in diameter and about thirty-six feet in height.

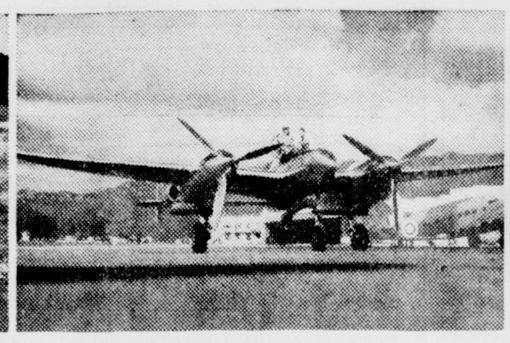
On the stationary bicycle (above) Marshall Headle, chief test pilot of Lockheed, breathes pure oxygen for 30 minutes before a test flight in Lockheed's new interceptor—one of America's newest high-altitude fighters.



CLIMBS A MILE A MINUTE—dives at speeds which are Army secrets. They call her "Lightning." Test pilot Headle clambers into the cockpit, switches from a pocket oxygen flask to his cabin supply, and streaks for the stratosphere. He's test-flown 300 different planes. But when he lands, it's always . . . "Now for a Camel."

YOU CAN'T SEE HIM up there. You can scarcely hear the hum of his motors. Then his voice comes into the radio tower: "Headle—35,000 feet—diving now." And as he comes plummeting down in that shrieking power-dive, you just hope! Seconds later—yes, seconds—he's landing. And here he is (above) cool, calm, lighting up a Camel.

"Less nicotine in the smoke means more mildness to me," says test pilot Marshall Headle (above), as he lights up his . . . and America's . . . favorite cigarette

THERE may be little traffic at 35,000 feet, but test-diving any new, untried plane is no Sunday joy-ride. No, not even for a veteran like Marshall Headle (above).

Naturally, cigarette mildness is important to Marshall Headle. And in the slower-burning cigarette of costlier tobaccos . . . Camels . . . he gets extra mildness—with less nicotine in the smoke.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—A gracious note has passed from the local commerce scene, perhaps never to return. The world moves on, tempus fugit, and John Miljan likes the movies.

There are filling stations, as you know, and filling stations. This was something extra-special in the line, out there on Sunset near the ocean. It wasn't the physical trappings of the place, which are still there, and it wasn't so much the smiling service idea ("Massage while you wait, sir?") which is pretty common everywhere. It was just that this station believed in that little personal touch which (I think I'm quoting somebody's ad) means so much.

John Miljan, working in the movies again on "An Obliging Young Lady," was a little sad about it. He reminisced:

"We had a great following out there. Nine men to service the cars, and whenever I could I'd go out and stick around to say "hello." The picture people in the neighborhood knew it was one station where they could always talk pictures. We used to sell gas regularly to Joan Crawford, Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, most of the people around that way. . . .

"AND the dog food department. Bill Wellman was always running out, so we stocked up, and pretty soon a lot of folks were depending on us to feed their dogs and cats. We carried birdseed, too. . . .

"And then there was the pet exchange. That just happened. One day a lady brought in a hurt squirrel that had fallen from a tree. She had it in a box and had fed it, and didn't know what to do with it so we took it in. I've still got that one, at home. But the other animals were just swapped around. One time we had a burro—Jack Holt took it—and a dog, a fox, a pheasant, chickens and ducks all at once.

"Somehow or other we got to be a sort of bureau of general information. When people wanted something and couldn't find it, they'd call. There was one man who wanted a flagpole, and he 'phoned in: 'I've got to find a flagpole, and I've looked all over town,' he said. So we asked what kind he wanted, steel or wood, and we found it for him.

"ANOTHER customer called up and said he was having trouble locating something he needed, at his price, and could we help? What was it? 'Alfalfa,' he said. Alfalfa, at a gas station servicing horseless carriages! But we found it for him."

This sort of thing couldn't last, of course. Miljan's partner heard the call of the Marines, and the actor, with movie work picking up, answered that call. A commercial chain has the old trading post and gossip center now, and you can't get dog food or birdseed or flagpoles or alfalfa there any more—just gas and oil and the usual things. If Jack Holt drove up and asked the smiling-service lads if they had any burros around today, the smiles would probably freeze—politely, of course.

You can't blame Miljan for being a little sad, I am, too.

Sugar Grove

Sugar Grove, Aug. 2—Mrs. Clarence White entertained thirty-two guests Tuesday evening at a variety shower for her daughter, Miss Pauline White, who will become the bride of John Larson at the Church of God in Jamestown, August 16. Guests were the ladies of the Presbyterian church, choir, relatives and friends. The evening was spent with games and contests, with several prizes going to the guests. Later in the evening a dainty luncheon was served with appointments of ruby and crystal, with a large cake centered with a tiny bride and groom as part of the lunch. Miss White received many lovely gifts from those present from Warren, Youngsville, Lakewood, Starbrick, Jamestown, Busti and Sugar Grove. Miss White was also honored Monday evening at a shower party given by Mrs. John Larson, Jamestown, and the Misses Ellen, Elsie and Edith Larson, of Busti, at the latter's home. The evening was spent with games and entertainment with prizes. Delicious refreshments were served with covers for eighteen, at a table with centerpiece of a three-tiered cake and tapers. The guest of honor received many nice gifts for her new home.

Mrs. A. A. Grant was hostess on Thursday afternoon to the Girl Scout mothers and committeewomen. Plans were discussed for merit badge work. Among other work planned will be a class in home nursing taught by Mrs. Hobart Sanders. Plans were made for raising money for the permanent camp fund. A play will be given and a bake sale will be held at Haggerty's store, next Wednesday, August 6, at ten o'clock. Mrs. Grant, assisted by some of the Scouts, served refreshments. Fourteen ladies were present.

Fred Barrett was honored with a family birthday dinner party at his home Sunday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Barrett and daughter, Shirley, of Bemus Point; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hartman and Miss Catherine Wright, of Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Wright and sons, Frederic and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barrett and son, Ronald.

Mr. and Mrs. Traverse Stohlberg of East Aurora, N. Y., is the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. O. D. Barlow.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Nuesom and daughter, Ruth, of Princeton, Pa., were recent guests of Rev. and Mrs. Perrin.

Miss Ethel Hodges, of Warren, spent Tuesday and Wednesday with her aunt, Mrs. John Mahan.

Miss Jean Burt, of Olean, N. Y., is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. F. A. Schoonover.

GASOLINELESS NIGHTS

With little or no confusion to local motorists and service station owners the community joined others in the Atlantic seaboard states Sunday evening in what may be a long period of gasolineless nights. Complying with Secretary Ickes' request that the oil industry close 100,000 service stations from 7:00 p. m. to 7 a. m., local proprietors responded unanimously.

What effect the closing hours will have in sections where standard time is in effect was not touched upon in the Washington order, but it is understood tha stations in such areas will operate an hour longer in the evening than where daylight time is effective, and open an hour later in the morning.

Noting that Ohio is not included in the provisional closing hours, it is understood Pennsylvania motorists in towns bordering on that state are driving across the line after Keystone State stations go dark.

All this was ordered by Ickes in the hope that gasoline can be conserved, although the general opinion is that there is no shortage of gasoline in this country, but, on the contrary, a lack of tankers to carry the crude from Gulf and west coast ports to the seaboard. More than fifty tankers were diverted from these runs several weeks ago and turned over to England so the British could have a steady gasoline supply for their war efforts.

Already the oil industry has demonstrated that it is determined to give full cooperation. While the request called for voluntary compliance, it is anticipated that it will be followed by penalizing legislation and possible gas card rationing if the use of gasoline is not greatly reduced. The first three or four weeks under the new closing regulations should give some idea as to what to expect in the way of mandatory legislation to bring about the needed curtailment.

MORE ABOUT THE DAM

That all communities along the river do not share the apprehensions of a few citizens of Warren regarding the construction of the proposed dam at Kinzua is reflected in the following editorial taken from the Valley Daily News:

The Warren flood control dam, construction of which is almost assured as the result of action by the Senate, will prove one of the most effective units in the system designed to protect Allegheny Valley communities from the ravages of high water.

The dam, which is to cost approximately 35 million, will practically cut off the Allegheny at Warren from its headwaters since it will extend clear across the river. The resultant lake will extend into New York state and will afford excellent recreational facilities.

Not only will the dam be effective in diverting enough of the flow of the river to avert disaster in times of flood, but it will serve a most useful purpose in dealing with the evils of acid in the river during the summer or at any time when the stage of the stream is low. By the occasional release of water from the reservoir the acid can be diluted sufficiently to eliminate or minimize the damage that is done to plumbing and put an end to the wholesale destruction of fish life. Beyond that, the flushing of the river should end the ill taste which water from the Allegheny often possesses.

Government engineers have assured the people of Warren, naturally apprehensive about the storage of such a great head of water above their town, that the dam will be so constructed as to be perfectly safe. Warrenites, they say, need have no fear of a repetition of the Johnstown flood.

Down-river communities like Tarentum will welcome the news that the dam is assured because the numerous benefits in the way of flood control and purification. On the other hand, the hydro-electric possibilities of the dam should mean a lot to Warren as a potential manufacturing center. Not to be overlooked, either, are the recreational facilities the Warrenites will be privileged to enjoy on and along the shores of the huge lake.

NEW WEAPONS

It is most encouraging to see the Army come out with two new weapons which suggest that it has really been studying the needs of modern warfare.

First, a new carbine, a semi-automatic light rifle weighing only five pounds, and only three feet long. All infantry officers below the rank of major, all non-commissioned officers, and many special troops, engineers, machine gunners, and the like, will carry it.

Second, a new half-trac truck mountaing a 75-mm. field gun is already coming off the assembly lines. Such a weapon in the hands of France might have stopped the German tank blitz which broke through the French army. This gun could even fire point-blank with the truck in motion.

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 4—The more you read the less you know, and the more you follow the dope of the experts the more you believe that Big Bill Knudsen was right—"An expert is a mechanic away from home."

That general negation can be applied to military experts, political experts, all economists, experts on foreign affairs and particularly experts on the Far East. In the opinion of people who should know there ain't any such animal as that last.

An examination of the record of most so-called experts on the Far Eastern situation will prove this easily. A year ago they began predicting that the U. S. fleet would go to Singapore, that war between the U. S. and Japan was inevitable, and that the Japanese were ready to seize the Dutch East Indies any 15 minutes. On the general theory that if you predict a thing long enough and hard enough it will come true under the law of averages, all these things may happen. But don't do without eating until they do, for there are any number of reasons, military as well as economic, that they aren't going to come off instanter.

Whatever you think of the administratoin's policy or lack of policy toward the blind alley brawl in Europe, credit must be given where credit is due, and the policy Jwith regard to the Far East and particularly Japan has thus far been planned and executed with skill. The importance of the Orient in the international picture has not been overlooked, but the bait and the line played out to the Pacific big game fish has been well handled, beautifully timed and with just enough of the slack of appeasement so that fisherman Uncle Sam has not become fouled in his own line and dragged into the drink.

Economically, the actual freezing of Japanese credits and the threat of embargoes on oil and silk have been good pressure to make Tokio stop and consider. Actual embargoes would do the Japanese more harm than sending the fleet to Singapore.

Militarily, Japan is rated third most war-weary country in the world, Spain and Italy alone being ahead of her in that kind of despair. Furthermore, Japan is in the position of the big fish which swallowed the hook and can't spit it out.

She has an army of less than two million—1,600,000 under arms and another 200,000 or so called up. She has the manpower for an army of four million, but can't get the arms or equipment for them. That is, she has 57 divisions under arms and the most she can raise is 66, instead of the potential 200.

Information is perhaps none too accurate, but the best dope is that 10 divisions are in Manchukuo against two red banner armies of the Soviet made up of 26 infantry, 10 cavalry and four mechanized divisions. Thirty-seven Japanese divisions are occupied in China, one is in Korea, one on Sakhalin Island, three or four in Hainan and French Indo-China, and four or five at home. That's what the military experts call extreme dispersion.

Japanese mechanized forces are as bad if not worse than even the American. Japanese air forces of approximately 3600 planes are mostly 1939 models, copies of Ger-

Active operations of reconstructing the plant of the Allegheny Steel Tank Car company, destroyed by fire several months ago, will begin Monday and a crew of 20 carpenters will be put to work. The building and equipment will cost about $20,000 and when ready for operation will give employment to a score or more men.

The following Warren golfers will take part in the Allegheny Golf League tournament at Oil City Friday and Saturday: O. A. Pressel, H. R. Fisher, C. J. Crary, W. J. Richards, Francis Fisher, B. G. Dawes, H. V. Hazeltine, F. G. Schuler, Wm. Smith, Wm. Jacobs, J. C. Holderness.

The list in the political announcements column continues to grow with promise of many more names being added in the next few days. Today D. Curtis Armstrong, Jackson street, throws his hat in the ring for county auditor.

Owing to the fact that the "cannon bill" has been held up, the guns that were to be sent to Warren for Memorial Park will not be shipped for an indefenite period. The cannons were secured through Congressman Bixler.

County Superintendent of Schools C. S. Knapp is erecting a garage at his residence, 110 Jackson avenue.

Several hundred from Warren were in attendance at the thirty-third annual picnic at Snyder's Grove, near Grand Valley, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows' lodge of that place, today. The fact that United States Senator James J. Davis was the speaker served to attract one of the largest crowds in the long history of these outings.

Without a doubt the best game of the year in the Central Mushball League was played last night on the West End Field when Ritchie's Rioters put the Style Shop outfit out of first place.

The contractor for the Pennsylvania avenue east paving job started a large force on the project this morning. Bricks began to fly from the South street end of the avenue today and the work will be rushed to completion.

The State-Bankers and the Barrette Cleaners will battle at Russell Field tonight in the Sunset League encounter.

Perez, Chilean Leader, Fought Revolt and War

JOSE JOAQUIN PEREZ, who rose from a diplomatic career to the presidency of Chile in 1861 weathered some severe storms during his 10-year tenure in office.

Despite opposition attempts to overthrow the government and a series of adverse events, Perez made a sincere effort to set the Chilean house in order. The government honored him philatelically in the 1911 stamp above.

Perez was born in 1800 in Santiago, Chile. He occupied several diplomatic posts, represented his government at both Paris and Buenos Aires.

He was minister of the treasury from 1845-49 and of the interior 1849-51.

On Sept. 18, 1861, he was elected president of Chile, was re-elected in 1866, and served until 1871. Under him, the moderate liberals began to take part in the government.

He endeavored to follow a policy of conciliation both with the Liberals and with the Araucanians, but the latter resented his colonization schemes and defied the government. Their leader, a French adventurer named De Tounens, was arrested and the revolt smashed.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

EIGHTH MONTH

August is the vacation month for many, the forgotten month for others, who call June and July the best summer months. August, like the other months, has its claims to fame, as shown in the following questions:

1. For what famous Roman was the month of August named?
2. What famous explorer sailed West from Spain on a voyage of discovery in August, during the 15th century?
3. An airplane inventor, a recent vice president and two presidents were born in August. Who are they?
4. What vital link in U. S. defenses was opened in August, 1914?
5. The first steamboat sailed on Lake Erie, and the first transcontinental automobile trip were made in the month of August. What years would you say these two events occurred?

Everybody Reads the Times-Mirror

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Before this dries, you are going to be hearing a lot about the CADS. I mean the Civil Air Defense Services.

A national committee headed by Capt. Gill Robb Wilson, who is also president of the National Aeronautic Association, has had plans for the CADS in the works for quite a while. For some reason the national defense people haven't turned on the green light for the CADS, but it's coming.

I saw a preview of the plans the other day. The underlying idea is to organize civilian aviation for an emergency.

Captain Wilson, writing in National Aeronautics magazine, gave a better description of civilian aviation in the United States than I can: "What is it? It is 82,000 certified pilots. It is 50,000 student pilots. It is 25,000 mechanics and airport personnel. It is 3,000,000 model builders. It is a light plane model industry. It is 22,000 certificated civil aircraft. It is 2,000 airports and landing fields outside those serving military and scheduled flying." The list goes on, including all the magazines, journals, and national and local flying organizations.

This is the backlog out of which civilian defense proposes to carve the CADS, with a "Wing" in every state, composed of flights, squadrons and groups in the smaller centers.

New Certificates

THE first step would be to have the Civilian Aeronautics Administration reclassify all airmen's certificates. The new certificates would require proof of citizenship, oath of allegiance to the United States, and such positive identification as fingerprints and photographs. And the first job of the CADS would be to see that no one took off or tightened a nut on an air jalopy without one of the certificates.

From there on, the CADS would take over the job of guarding radio range stations and the 2,000 airports which, not being military or scheduled airline airports, would not ordinarily be subject to military guard. The CADS also would learn how to make these airports unsuitable for enemy use in case of invasion.

A courier service, with men capable of flying everything from bombers and transports to messages in a capsule, would be organized.

A highway traffic patrol would be established in every area where congestion might occur, the CADS patroling such areas and notifying police and military authorities immediately by radio as to where jams were piling up.

Restricted industrial and defense areas would be patrolled constantly.

With the army and navy personnel tied up completely in disaster relief work where airplanes are necessary would be taken over by the civilian flyers.

They would also assist in search for missing military aircraft and give aid to pilots and crews forced down in remote areas.

Would Have To Keep Up

IN ORDER to accomplish all this, the CADS would have to keep their flight training and mechanical skill right up to snuff. The flyers would have to know every inch of terrain in their defense areas as well as that in any nearby areas into which they might be called. They would have to know something about military air maneuvers, types of planes, and a dozen other things with which the ordinary civilian pilot has only a slight speaking acquaintance at present.

A few areas, impatient at governmental delays, already have organized Wings along this line, notably New Jersey, Alabama and Long Island, where Roger Wolfe Kahn, noted sportsman pilot, is taking a lead in forming the group.

With the advice and under authority of state and local defense military authorities, these groups are ready to take the air. According to Captain Wilson, hundreds more will follow the minute they get the green light.

Announcement was made today that "Dennie" J. Di Pierro has taken over exclusive management of the White House Inn, having acquired the interest of his former partner, "Kelly" Healey.

Observing the change in management, a grand opening will be held at the White House Inn tonight, with no cover charge being made. For the opening and for the entire week, a special floor show featuring O'Dare, Drew and Patricia, a versatile trio, will be presented. Also on the program will be Jack Duggan, the Texas cowboy, singing popular and old time songs.

The floor shows will be presented twice nightly, at 10 and 12, and an augmented orchestra will provide music for dancing.

The entire Inn has been redecorated and improved for the opening by the new proprietor.

FOREST TRACTS ARE ADDED TO NATIONAL AREA

The National Forest Reservation Commission at its last meeting approved the purchase of 112,870 acres of land consisting of 385 tracts located in 23 states and Puerto Rico. This purchase, Supervisor Hemingway reports, included 14,176 acres on Allegheny National Forest.

A 13,590 acre tract on the Allegheny offered by the Wheeler & Dusenbury Company was the largest single tract approved. It is located in Forest and Warren counties and was cut over some years ago when this company operated a large sawmill at Endeavor.

Two smaller tracts in McKean conty, totaling 336 acres, and one in Elk county of 250 acres were also approved. These latest additions bring the total purchases on Allegheny National Forest to 460,393 acres.

Population of Florida jumped from 1,468,211 in 1930 to 1,877,791 in 1940, according to 1940 census figures.

URGE TRUCKERS TO AID IN GAS SAVING PROGRAM

The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, in a bulletin to its members, today listed five ways in which truck operators can aid in the gasoline conservation program.

"It is up to each of you as individuals to accept responsibility for fuel conservation in your fleet," the P. M. T. A. bulletin said.

"As truck operators, here are some of the things you can do:

"1. Make your entire organization gasoline conservation conscious, by meetings, bulletin board announcements, notices, etc.

"2. In the shop adjust all points to give greatest fuel economy. Carburetor adjustments and other tuning-up processes should take into account that 'get-away' is not as important as fuel saving.

"3. In refueling, caution all workers not to fill tank too full, and lose gasoline through spillage.

"4. Don't send out half loads, or duplicate runs to make one or two deliveries. Use one large truck in place of two small ones wherever possible. Run full instead of partial loads to outlying points, if possible, serving them less often. Solicit the cooperation of shippers to have all pick-ups ready at one time.

"5. Drivers should cut off ignition at every stop. Don't leave motor running while parked at curb for deliveries. At stop light, or wherever tied up in traffic, continued 'gunning' of motor uses unnecessary gas. Slow starts can be made in second with less fuel consumption than the accelerated starts made in low."

GROCERIES ..and GUNS

EVERY day we Americans make millions of telephone calls—they may be for groceries or grass seed, pins or paint, coal or cold cream.

But today, there are thousands and thousands of other calls going over our wires—calls concerned with the defense of America! These calls may speed the construction of army camps, the delivery of machine guns and munitions—or even the building of a battleship or bomber!

This new load of telephone traffic is important to every American family. It must get a clear track and full speed ahead!

And so we ask that every telephone user cooperate to keep telephone service smooth and fast!

HERE ARE SOME SUGGESTIONS:

1. Don't trust to memory or to old lists for telephone numbers. It's best to look in the directory and make sure.
2. Answer the telephone promptly.
3. When you make a call, give the called party enough time to answer before "hanging up."
4. Try to avoid unnecessarily long conversations, especially if you are on a party line.
5. Be sure to hang up the instrument after every call. Failure to do so means your line is "busy"—though it may be doing nothing!

Your cooperation will speed the service that speeds defense!

man originals now obsolete, and 750 miles is still the effective range for bombers carrying bombs. From Saigon, French Indo-China, to Singapore is 840 miles and from Formosa or Canton to Manila is about the same. From Vladivostok to Tokio is 680 miles.

That would seem to leave it up to Japan's navy—and a right good navy, too—if Japan is to go places. She can, of course, ride off in all four directions. If she goes north and runs into the Soviet, there is plenty of trouble ahead. She can go farther into China at about the same rate she has gone in the last four years.

She can go south, against the Malay peninsula and Singapore and encounter a great many worries. The occupation of Indo-China can be considered as accomplished, and Japan might even penetrate Siam, but Singapore is something else again. Before Japan can tackle the Dutch East Indies, she must reduce Singapore, and it would take years.

To the east lie the Philippines. They are within range, and if Japan did not have her hands full in three other directions, they would be pie any time she wanted to help herself. Engaged as the Japanese are on three other fronts, a full shooting war, requiring complete coordination of sea, air and land forces, would keep the Japanese gentlemen very busy indeed for quite some time, sank you, prease.

So don't bet on war with Japan tomorrow.

One of the nation's outstanding future military aviation projects, the development of a giant 2000-horsepower in-line, liquid-cooled airplane engine which will be more powerful than any yet built, has reached the production stage.

INSECTS CAUSE LEAF DAMAGING

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—The browning of black locust leaves in Pennsylvania this year did not result from frost but was caused by insects. This damage is particularly noticeable along the Susquehanna river. Research Forester Albert B. Mickalitis, of the Department of Forests and Waters, states that the feeding of locust beetles is responsible for the general brown condition. Grubs of this beetle also produce blister-like spots on the leaves.

The entire foliage of an infested tree may be killed twice in a season which considerably reduces the vigor of the tree, and in some instances causes its death. Since these pests have already done most of their damage, control measures during the current year are not advisable.

In the case of valuable shade trees, the beetle can be controlled by spraying during the month of May with arsenate of lead at the rate of four pounds mixed in fifty gallons of water.

GASOLINELESS NIGHTS

With little or no confusion to local motorists and service station owners the community joined others in the Atlantic seaboard states Sunday evening in what may be a long period of gasolineless nights. Complying with Secretary Ickes' request that the oil industry close 100,000 service stations from 7:00 p. m. to 7 a. m., local proprietors responded unanimously.

What effect the closing hours will have in sections where standard time is in effect was not touched upon in the Washington order, but it is understood tha stations in such areas will operate an hour longer in the evening than where daylight time is effective, and open an hour later in the morning.

Noting that Ohio is not included in the provisional closing hours, it is understood Pennsylvania motorists in towns bordering on that state are driving across the line after Keystone State stations go dark.

All this was ordered by Ickes in the hope that gasoline can be conserved, although the general opinion is that there is no shortage of gasoline in this country, but, on the contrary, a lack of tankers to carry the crude from Gulf and west coast ports to the seaboard. More than fifty tankers were diverted from these runs several weeks ago and turned over to England so the British could have a steady gasoline supply for their war efforts.

Already the oil industry has demonstrated that it is determined to give full cooperation. While the request called for voluntary compliance, it is anticipated that it will be followed by penalizing legislation and possible gas card rationing if the use of gasoline is not greatly reduced. The first three or four weeks under the new closing regulations should give some idea as to what to expect in the way of mandatory legislation to bring about the needed curtailment.

MORE ABOUT THE DAM

That all communities along the river do not share the apprehensions of a few citizens of Warren regarding the construction of the proposed dam at Kinzua is reflected in the following editorial taken from the Valley Daily News:

The Warren flood control dam, construction of which is almost assured as the result of action by the Senate, will prove one of the most effective units in the system designed to protect Allegheny Valley communities from the ravages of high water.

The dam, which is to cost approximately 35 million, will practically cut off the Allegheny at Warren from its headwaters since it will extend clear across the river. The resultant lake will extend into New York state and will afford excellent recreational facilities.

Not only will the dam be effective in diverting enough of the flow of the river to avert disaster in times of flood, but it will serve a most useful purpose in dealing with the evils of acid in the river during the summer or at any time when the stage of the stream is low. By the occasional release of water from the reservoir the acid can be diluted sufficiently to eliminate or minimize the damage that is done to plumbing and put an end to the wholesale destruction of fish life. Beyond that, the flushing of the river should end the ill taste which water from the Allegheny often possesses.

Government engineers have assured the people of Warren, naturally apprehensive about the storage of such a great head of water above their town, that the dam will be so constructed as to be perfectly safe. Warrenites, they say, need have no fear of a repetition of the Johnstown flood.

Down-river communities like Tarentum will welcome the news that the dam is assured because the numerous benefits in the way of flood control and purification. On the other hand, the hydro-electric possibilities of the dam should mean a lot to Warren as a potential manufacturing center. Not to be overlooked, either, are the recreational facilities the Warrenites will be privileged to enjoy on and along the shores of the huge lake.

NEW WEAPONS

It is most encouraging to see the Army come out with two new weapons which suggest that it has really been studying the needs of modern warfare.

First, a new carbine, a semi-automatic light rifle weighing only five pounds, and only three feet long. All infantry officers below the rank of major, all non-commissioned officers, and many special troops, engineers, machine gunners, and the like, will carry it.

Second, a new half-trac truck mountaing a 75-mm. field gun is already coming off the assembly lines. Such a weapon in the hands of France might have stopped the German tank blitz which broke through the French army. This gun could even fire point-blank with the truck in motion.

Sshh! Daddy Is Busy

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 4—The more you read the less you know, and the more you follow the dope of the experts the more you believe that Big Bill Knudsen was right—"An expert is a mechanic away from home."

That general negation can be applied to military experts, political experts, all economists, experts on foreign affairs and particularly experts on the Far East. In the opinion of people who should know there ain't any such animal as that last.

An examination of the record of most so-called experts on the Far Eastern situation will prove this easily. A year ago they began predicting that the U. S. fleet would go to Singapore, that war between the U. S. and Japan was inevitable, and that the Japanese were ready to seize the Dutch East Indies any 15 minutes. On the general theory that if you predict a thing long enough and hard enough it will come true under the law of averages, all these things may happen. But don't do without eating until they do, for there are any number of reasons, military as well as economic, that they aren't going to come off instanter.

Whatever you think of the administratoin's policy or lack of policy toward the blind alley brawl in Europe, credit must be given where credit is due, and the policy Jwith regard to the Far East and particularly Japan has thus far been planned and executed with skill. The importance of the Orient in the international picture has not been overlooked, but the bait and the line played out to the Pacific big game fish has been well handled, beautifully timed and with just enough of the slack of appeasement so that fisherman Uncle Sam has not become fouled in his own line and dragged into the drink.

Economically, the actual freezing of Japanese credits and the threat of embargoes on oil and silk have been good pressure to make Tokio stop and consider. Actual embargoes would do the Japanese more harm than sending the fleet to Singapore.

Militarily, Japan is rated third most war-weary country in the world, Spain and Italy alone being ahead of her in that kind of despair. Furthermore, Japan is in the position of the big fish which swallowed the hook and can't spit it out.

She has an army of less than two million—1,600,000 under arms and another 200,000 or so called up. She has the manpower for an army of four million, but can't get the arms or equipment for them. That is, she has 57 divisions under arms and the most she can raise is 66, instead of the potential 200.

Information is perhaps none too accurate, but the best dope is that 10 divisions are in Manchukuo against two red banner armies of the Soviet made up of 26 infantry, 10 cavalry and four mechanized divisions. Thirty-seven Japanese divisions are occupied in China, one is in Korea, one on Sakhalin Island, three or four in Hainan and French Indo-China, and four or five at home. That's what the military experts call extreme dispersion.

Japanese mechanized forces are as bad if not worse than even the American. Japanese air forces of approximately 3600 planes are mostly 1939 models, copies of Ger-

Active operations of reconstructing the plant of the Allegheny Steel Tank Car company, destroyed by fire several months ago, will begin Monday and a crew of 20 carpenters will be put to work. The building and equipment will cost about $20,000 and when ready for operation will give employment to a score or more men.

The following Warren golfers will take part in the Allegheny Golf League tournament at Oil City Friday and Saturday: O. A. Pressel, H. R. Fisher, C. J. Crary, W. J. Richards, Francis Fisher, B. G. Dawes, H. V. Hazeltine, F. G. Schuler, Wm. Smith, Wm. Jacobs, J. C. Holderness.

The list in the political announcements column continues to grow with promise of many more names being added in the next few days. Today D. Curtis Armstrong, Jackson street, throws his hat in the ring for county auditor.

Owing to the fact that the "cannon bill" has been held up, the guns that were to be sent to Warren for Memorial Park will not be shipped for an indefenite period. The cannons were secured through Congressman Bixler.

Several hundred from Warren were in attendance at the thirty-third annual picnic at Snyder's Grove, near Grand Valley, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows' lodge of that place, today. The fact that United States Senator James J. Davis was the speaker served to attract one of the largest crowds in the long history of these outings.

Without a doubt the best game of the year in the Central Mushball League was played last night on the West End Field when Ritchie's Rioters put the Style Shop outfit out of first place.

The contractor for the Pennsylvania avenue east paving job started a large force on the project this morning. Bricks began to fly from the South street end of the avenue today and the work will be rushed to completion.

Perez, Chilean Leader, Fought Revolt and War

JOSE JOAQUIN PEREZ, who rose from a diplomatic career to the presidency of Chile in 1861 weathered some severe storms during his 10-year tenure in office.

Despite opposition attempts to overthrow the government and a series of adverse events, Perez made a sincere effort to set the Chilean house in order. The government honored him philatelically in the 1911 stamp above.

Perez was born in 1800 in Santiago, Chile. He occupied several diplomatic posts, represented his government at both Paris and Buenos Aires.

He was minister of the treasury from 1845-49 and of the interior 1849-51.

On Sept. 18, 1861, he was elected president of Chile, was re-elected in 1866, and served until 1871. Under him, the moderate liberals began to take part in the government.

He endeavored to follow a policy of conciliation both with the Liberals and with the Araucanians, but the latter resented his colonization schemes and defied the government. Their leader, a French adventurer named De Tounens, was arrested and the revolt smashed.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

EIGHTH MONTH

August is the vacation month for many, the forgotten month for others, who call June and July the best summer months. August, like the other months, has its claims to fame, as shown in the following questions:

1. For what famous Roman was the month of August named?
2. What famous explorer sailed West from Spain on a voyage of discovery in August, during the 15th century?
3. An airplane inventor, a recent vice president and two presidents were born in August. Who are they?
4. What vital link in U. S. defenses was opened in August, 1914?
5. The first steamboat sailed on Lake Erie, and the first transcontinental automobile trip were made in the month of August. What years would you say these two events occurred?

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Before this dries, you are going to be hearing a lot about the CADS. I mean the Civil Air Defense Services.

A national committee headed by Capt. Gill Robb Wilson, who is also president of the National Aeronautic Association, has had plans for the CADS in the works for quite a while. For some reason the national defense people haven't turned on the green light for the CADS, but it's coming.

I saw a preview of the plans the other day. The underlying idea is to organize civilian aviation for an emergency.

Captain Wilson, writing in National Aeronautics magazine, gave a better description of civilian aviation in the United States than I can: "What is it? It is 82,000 certified pilots. It is 50,000 student pilots. It is 25,000 mechanics and airport personnel. It is 3,000,000 model builders. It is a light plane model industry. It is 22,000 certificated civil aircraft. It is 2,000 airports and landing fields outside those serving military and scheduled flying." The list goes on, including all the magazines, journals, and national and local flying organizations.

This is the backlog out of which civilian defense proposes to carve the CADS, with a "Wing" in every state, composed of flights, squadrons and groups in the smaller centers.

New Certificates

THE first step would be to have the Civilian Aeronautics Administration reclassify all airmen's certificates. The new certificates would require proof of citizenship, oath of allegiance to the United States, and such positive identification as fingerprints and photographs. And the first job of the CADS would be to see that no one took off or tightened a nut on an air jalopy without one of the certificates.

From there on, the CADS would take over the job of guarding radio range stations and the 2,000 airports which, not being military or scheduled airline airports, would not ordinarily be subject to military guard. The CADS also would learn how to make these airports unsuitable for enemy use in case of invasion.

A courier service, with men capable of flying everything from bombers and transports to messages in a capsule, would be organized.

A highway traffic patrol would be established in every area where congestion might occur, the CADS patroling such areas and notifying police and military authorities immediately by radio as to where jams were piling up.

Restricted industrial and defense areas would be patrolled constantly.

With the army and navy personnel tied up completely in disaster relief work where airplanes are necessary would be taken over by the civilian flyers.

They would also assist in search for missing military aircraft and give aid to pilots and crews forced down in remote areas.

Would Have To Keep Up

IN ORDER to accomplish all this, the CADS would have to keep their flight training and mechanical skill right up to snuff. The flyers would have to know every inch of terrain in their defense areas as well as that in any nearby areas into which they might be called. They would have to know something about military air maneuvers, types of planes, and a dozen other things with which the ordinary civilian pilot has only a slight speaking acquaintance at present.

A few areas, impatient at governmental delays, already have organized Wings along this line, notably New Jersey, Alabama and Long Island, where Roger Wolfe Kahn, noted sportsman pilot, is taking a lead in forming the group.

With the advice and under authority of state and local defense military authorities, these groups are ready to take the air. According to Captain Wilson, hundreds more will follow the minute they get the green light.

FOREST TRACTS ARE ADDED TO NATIONAL AREA

The National Forest Reservation Commission at its last meeting approved the purchase of 112,870 acres of land consisting of 385 tracts located in 23 states and Puerto Rico. This purchase, Supervisor Hemingway reports, included 14,176 acres on Allegheny National Forest.

A 13,590 acre tract on the Allegheny offered by the Wheeler & Dusenbury Company was the largest single tract approved. It is located in Forest and Warren counties and was cut over some years ago when this company operated a large sawmill at Endeavor.

Two smaller tracts in McKean conty, totaling 336 acres, and one in Elk county of 250 acres were also approved. These latest additions bring the total purchases on Allegheny National Forest to 460,393 acres.

URGE TRUCKERS TO AID IN GAS SAVING PROGRAM

The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, in a bulletin to its members, today listed five ways in which truck operators can aid in the gasoline conservation program.

"It is up to each of you as individuals to accept responsibility for fuel conservation in your fleet," the P. M. T. A. bulletin said.

"As truck operators, here are some of the things you can do:

"1. Make your entire organization gasoline conservation conscious, by meetings, bulletin board announcements, notices, etc.

"2. In the shop adjust all points to give greatest fuel economy. Carburetor adjustments and other tuning-up processes should take into account that 'get-away' is not as important as fuel saving.

"3. In refueling, caution all workers not to fill tank too full, and lose gasoline through spillage.

"4. Don't send out half loads, or duplicate runs to make one or two deliveries. Use one large truck in place of two small ones wherever possible. Run full instead of partial loads to outlying points, if possible, serving them less often. Solicit the cooperation of shippers to have all pick-ups ready at one time.

"5. Drivers should cut off ignition at every stop. Don't leave motor running while parked at curb for deliveries. At stop light, or wherever tied up in traffic, continued 'gunning' of motor uses unnecessary gas. Slow starts can be made in second with less fuel consumption than the accelerated starts made in low."

GROCERIES ..and GUNS

EVERY day we Americans make millions of telephone calls—they may be for groceries or grass seed, pins or paint, coal or cold cream.

But today, there are thousands and thousands of other calls going over our wires—calls concerned with the defense of America! These calls may speed the construction of army camps, the delivery of machine guns and munitions—or even the building of a battleship or bomber!

This new load of telephone traffic is important to every American family. It must get a clear track and full speed ahead!

And so we ask that every telephone user cooperate to keep telephone service smooth and fast!

HERE ARE SOME SUGGESTIONS:

1. Don't trust to memory or to old lists for telephone numbers. It's best to look in the directory and make sure.
2. Answer the telephone promptly.
3. When you make a call, give the called party enough time to answer before "hanging up."
4. Try to avoid unnecessarily long conversations, especially if you are on a party line.
5. Be sure to hang up the instrument after every call. Failure to do so means your line is "busy"—though it may be doing nothing!

Your cooperation will speed the service that speeds defense!

man originals now obsolete, and 750 miles is still the effective range for bombers carrying bombs. From Saigon, French Indo-China, to Singapore is 840 miles and from Formosa or Canton to Manila is about the same. From Vladivostok to Tokio is 680 miles.

That would seem to leave it up to Japan's navy—and a right good navy, too—if Japan is to go places. She can, of course, ride off in all four directions. If she goes north and runs into the Soviet, there is plenty of trouble ahead. She can go farther into China at about the same rate she has gone in the last four years.

She can go south, against the Malay peninsula and Singapore and encounter a great many worries. The occupation of Indo-China can be considered as accomplished, and Japan might even penetrate Siam, but Singapore is something else again. Before Japan can tackle the Dutch East Indies, she must reduce Singapore, and it would take years.

To the east lie the Philippines. They are within range, and if Japan did not have her hands full in three other directions, they would be pie any time she wanted to help herself. Engaged as the Japanese are on three other fronts, a full shooting war, requiring complete coordination of sea, air and land forces, would keep the Japanese gentlemen very busy indeed for quite some time, sank you, prease.

So don't bet on war with Japan tomorrow.

One of the nation's outstanding future military aviation projects, the development of a giant 2000-horsepower in-line, liquid-cooled airplane engine which will be more powerful than any yet built, has reached the production stage.

INSECTS CAUSE LEAF DAMAGING

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—The browning of black locust leaves in Pennsylvania this year did not result from frost but was caused by insects. This damage is particularly noticeable along the Susquehanna river. Research Forester Albert B. Mickalitis, of the Department of Forests and Waters, states that the feeding of locust beetles is responsible for the general brown condition. Grubs of this beetle also produce blister-like spots on the leaves.

The entire foliage of an infested tree may be killed twice in a season which considerably reduces the vigor of the tree, and in some instances causes its death. Since these pests have already done most of their damage, control measures during the current year are not advisable.

In the case of valuable shade trees, the beetle can be controlled by spraying during the month of May with arsenate of lead at the rate of four pounds mixed in fifty gallons of water.

Chautauqua Institution's Fifth Week Will Bring Many Outstanding Events of Interest

Genuine highlights vie with each other for interest in the fifth week of Chautauqua Institution's season, when the program will include personal appearances of Percy Grainger, concert pianist and composer, and Craig Wood, national open and masters champion in 1941 golf events, and such annual events as "Old First Night" and the now famous choral festival.

The annual series of chamber music directed by Mischa Mischakoff has its second recital and the opera association's last performance of "The Pirates of Penzance" takes place this evening. Following the concert, William S. Bailey will give a stereopticon showing of Chautauqua scenes of long ago, selected from a collection he has made from the work of some of the most famous photographers of the seventies.

Tomorrow night will be the 67th "Old First Night" celebration at the institution, with exercises beginning at 7:30 o'clock in the amphitheatre.

Two sports events of interest are scheduled in this week, the annual Chautauqua tennis tournament from August 4 to 9, and the appearance of Craig Wood on Tuesday afternoon, supported by Ben Hogan, winner of the Vardon Trophy in 1940, Bill Souter, and Charles Eberhardt, formerly of Warren, for an exhibition match on the Chautauqua course.

On Wednesday, dentists of the region will gather for clinical sessions and listen to specialists, with two symphony concerts added to their program. The evening concert will feature Percy Grainger and the matinee will present Mischakoff and Reber Johnson in Bach's concerto for two violins.

Chautauqua's repertory theatre will present the next to the last performance of "Family Portrait" on Thursday, the last showing to be on Saturday night.

Friday marks the first performance of Puccini's "la Boheme", with Susanne Fisher, of the Metropolitan, singing the lead role.

The annual choral festival is scheduled for Saturday. Under the direction of Walter Howe and augmented by Chautauqua's symphony orchestra, eight regional choral groups will participate in the mass singing of well known chorales.

The Masonic Male Chorus, of Warren, O., will appear in the sacred song service next Sunday. Susanne Fisher will make her second appearance of the week, this time with the orchestra.

Preventive Medicine
OR THE SIGNIFICANCE OF Your DOCTOR
WANTS TO KEEP YOU WELL

"Your Doctor wants to KEEP you well" is emphatically and literally true, both of the individual physician and of medical scientists in general.

The administration of drugs, surgery and treatment of disease are by no means the sole functions of the modern doctor and scientist. He is just as active in the prevention of disease as in curing it. Spreading the gospel of health rules and hygienic living is prevention of ill-health; establishment of clinics for the control of infant mortality is prevention of unnecessary death; tuberculosis societies and sanitoria, cancer institutes, and hundreds of scientific research bureaus — all are laboring to prevent as well as cure disease.

Prenatal care is to prevent unnecessary suffering and death; school supervision of health is to promote better bodies and minds and prevent disease; all were worked out by doctors in their battle for better health and less sickness.

The proper drainage of mosquito-breeding marshland is prevention, but back of that piece of public-health engineering, the scientist had to discover that malaria was caused by mosquitoes. Administering vaccines and serums prevents smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid, whooping cough and other diseases, but years of patient work by medical men went into perfecting these instruments of "preventive" medicine.

Telling you over and over to "have a complete examination once a year" is "preventive medicine," in that it locates trouble IN TIME and helps your doctor to keep you well. Every year the physician in his daily practice becomes more and more a HEALTH adviser.

St. Louis Browns Trample Over Yankees In Doubleheader

Win Both Games By 4-2 and 5-0; Redbirds Also Cop Twin Bill

BY BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

On this day the particular story is bound to be about pitching, and it could emphasize several kinds, all of them good.

It could go into detail about Bob Feller's 20th victory; or the double-teaming by Mort Cooper and Lon Warneke that added a half game to the St. Louis Cardinals' lead, or the seven-hit hurling of Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt which kept the lead from growing even larger; or the twin shutouts of Cincinnati by Jim Tobin and Johnny Hutchings of the Boston Braves; or the six-hit whitewash of Ted Lyons applied to Washington, for his 243rd White Sox triumph.

All were standout performances, but the biggest palm must go to two elbowers who don't come close to Lyons in experience, to Feller in brilliance or to Cooper and Warneke for victories won.

Right-handers Johnny Niggeling and Bob Harris' labor in the comparitive obscurity of the St. Louis Browns.

U. S. C. COACH NAMED

Los Angeles, Aug. 4—(AP)—The Los Angeles Times said today it had learned from an authoritative source that Justin M. (Sam) Barry had accepted the position of head coach of football at the University of Southern California.

He would succeed Howard Jones, who died July 27.

Barry has been the Trojan basketball and baseball coach.

They caught the attention of the entire baseball world yesterday by stopping the New York Yankees cold.

Niggeling, in the opener of a doubleheader, pitched a four-hitter that beat the American League leaders, 6-2, and broke Charley Ruffing's winning streak of nine straight. He not only kept Joe DiMaggio hitless for the first time in 17 contests, but was the first pitcher in 84 games able to keep the Great Giuseppe from getting on base.

Then Harris came with a handsome two-hitter in the nightcap for a 5-0 shutout, the first Yank blanking since May 30. He also held DiMag without a hit, and completed destruction of another Yankee record—that of not having lost a double-header all season.

Feller's 20th triumph for Cleveland came in the first tilt of a twin bill with the Philadelphia Athletics that drew a record Shibe Park crowd of 40,200. Rapid Robert held the A's to three hits as the Indians won, 6-3. The Tribe missed a chance to pick up two full games on the Yankees by losing the second encounter, 4-3.

Lyons, who didn't walk a man, had 18-hit support from the White Sox in gaining his 9-0 triumph over the Senators.

The Detroit Tigers built up an early lead for Hal Newhouser as he turned back the Boston Red Sox, 6-3.

Cooper, making his first start since June 17, and Warneke, getting his 13th win of the year, combined to hold the Phillies to 11 hits for two 6-1 victories.

The Dodgers, ending their western trip with a four-game winning string, collected 15 hits in beating the Cubs 10-2.

For the Boston Braves it was five-hit pitching by Tobin and a three-hit job by Hutchings that blanked the Cincinnati Reds, 5-0 and 3-0. The New York Giants relapsed into their losing ways as they bowed to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-4 and 10-4, the latter in only six innings because of the Pennsylvania Sunday curfew.

HAMBLETONIAN CLASSIC TO BE RUN WEDNESDAY

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 4—(AP)—A long shot was the first official entrant today for Wednesday's renewal of the classic Hambletonian trotting stake at Good Time Park.

Even before the track's meeting opened this afternoon, Sullivan and Newhinney of Machias, Me., deposited a $500 check at the secretary's office as the starting fee for their brown filly, Merwynna, in the Hambletonian.

The optimistic prediction was that 10 or 11 three-year-olds would pull their sulkies to the starting line for a crack at the $45,000 jackpot.

Trotters definitely expected to answer the call are the favored Bill Gallon, from the stable of R. H. Johnson of Charlotte, N. C.; Perpetual, well-regarded hope of Doc Parshall for his third Hambletonian triumph; Florimel, local favorite from the Arden Homestead stable; Fast Train, owned by E. T. Gerry, of New York, state harness racing commissioner; His Excellency, owned by William Strang of Brooklyn, and Lucy Hanover, from the Hanover (Pa.) Shoe Farms.

Others which may be in the field include Double Guy, chestnut son of Guy Day, owned by Dr. Anderson Arbury of Midland, Mich; Colleen Scott, from the barn of the veteran Kentuckian, Ben White, and Fay, owned by Harkness Edwards of Donerail, Ky. There is a possibility, too, that Dunbar Bostwick, the New York sportsman, might start Hollyrood Anna.

Pittsburgh Steeler Gridders Practicing

Hershey, Aug. 4—(AP)—Coaches Bert Bell and Walter Kiesling sent the Pittsburgh Steelers through heavy gridiron work at the Hershey Stadium practice field over the week-end, in advance preparation for the first inter-squad game here Friday night.

Looking especially good in the week-end practice sessions was Art Jones, towering tailback, who joined the squad in time for Saturday's drill. Jones, triple-threat back with the University of Richmond during the past three seasons, is expected to handle the passing assignments for the Steelers during the coming National Professional League season.

Also impressive in the scrimmage sessions was Boyd Brumbaugh, former Duquesne University fullback, who is starting his fourth year in professional football.

SPORT SPATTERINGS

WE REVIEW THE SUMMER SPORTS

As football will be our main topic in this column and on this page within a couple of weeks, it seems that this is a good time to review the summer's sports activities, as closely as our record books can recall, and that should be close enough, don't you think? It hasn't been an exceptionally busy summer in the way of sports, and yet it hasn't been exactly dull. So, if you can bear it for the next few moments, we'll review for you the various progress made in sports in the community.

BASEBALL—This has been taken care of nicely in three departments, with a fourth adding to the cause a little bit. The National Forge has presented most of the entertainment for fans in this section and has won thirteen games against four defeats. Their victims in order are: St. Marys Colts, two games; Erie White Sox, two games away from home; Wellsville; Jungle Giants; Warren, O., two; Akron Goodyear; Ford City, two; Endicott, N. Y., two. And the Irvine crew lost twice to Wellsville and once to both the Homestead Grays and the Akron Killian Celtics, whom they play again next Sunday. "Emmy" Morrison leads the batting with .433. Then there's the Marconi club, with an interest in the leadership of the Interstate League, and the State Hospital, which has produced some fine Saturday ball. The Eagles are the fourth department and, while they haven't played an awful lot, own a fine ball club.

GOLF—The sixth annual county golf championship tourney was held and "Chink" Collins retained the toga, beating a field of thirty to come home winner. "Doc" Graves was third and Jack Zerres fourth, while a 16-year-old Jamestown clubber took second. The Conewango Valley, Kinzua and Maplehurst golf clubs have all been busy this year, with favorable weather helping them have an exceptionally good summer. The county tourney, incidentally, was held over the Maplehurst course, which is one of the nicest nine-hole layouts in this section. But more about golf. "Doc" Graves retained his State Dental Association golf title when the association held its annual meeting at Bedford Springs and the tourney was held at the same time. If the local dentist wins next year, he can retire the trophy awarded.

SOFTBALL—The City League has held the interest of softball fans this season and now is starting its last week, except for the playoffs. There was a complication, due to rained out games, in the first half which hasn't been cleared up and the second half is still not definitely settled, though the K. of C. holds the inside track at present. This week's games will decide the second half winner and the first half winner will be decided by an elimination, with the two playing for the championship. Softball, however, did not scale the heights expected of it this campaign.

TENNIS—Tennis has been slow this year, though the "Y" has built a new court and the hospital court was given to the playgrounds. But in this month of August, Physical Director Ed. Hasler hopes to conclude the present tourney, which is running overtime, and get a bigger tournament started. Also he plans to get some team matches for the YMCA team. Meanwhile, Playgrounds Director H. G. Kolpien also is planning a tournament which will be a city-wide affair to be held on the hospital court and possibly the "Y" court, if it can be arranged. So tennis may come into its own before fall officially arrives.

And that about winds up all the community sports for the summer program, which leaves this desk fairly clean and ready to start with football, both pro and scholastic, and everything else that goes with it, come the middle of this month and thereafter. The Red Jackets will be conditioning in a couple of weeks and the schoolboys will start their grinds August 25. And we believe it'll feel kind of good to exchange base hits for a few touchdowns, though we can't honestly hold any grudge against the efforts of the baseball teams this summer. They've done very well, considering the handicaps and all.

Yesterday's Stars

Bob Feller, Indians, and Wally Moses, Athletics—Feller pitched three-hit ball for 20th victory; Moses scored winning run in nightcap after opening ninth inning with double.

Billy Sullivan, Tigers—His three hits led 11-hit attack against Red Sox.

Mort Cooper and Lon Warneke, Cardinals—Set down Phillies with total of 11 hits in two games.

Lloyd Dietz and Bob Klinger, Pirates—Dietz allowed only 2 hits in 8 1-2 inning relief role for 5-4 opening win over Giants; Klinger's tight relief pitching won nightcap.

FINALS IN SEMI-PRO TOURNEY OPEN TODAY

Vandergrift, Aug. 4—(AP)—Brackenridge SWOC tackles unbeaten Nemacolin in the final of the state semi-pro baseball tournament here today.

Brackenridge eliminated Freeport 7-1 Saturday to reach the final. As two defeats are required to eliminate a team, Brackenridge, which has won four and lost one, will have to defeat Nemacolin twice to win the title. However, Nemacolin can annex the championship with a single victory over Brackenridge.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Aug. 4—What a lot of us average guys would like to know is what Tami Mauriello is doing in there against Gus Lesnevich for the light-heavyweight championship of the world (New York version). So far as we know Mauriello has made just one start as a light-heavy. . . . Draw your own conclusions. . . . The Giants are trying to get Babe Barna from Minneapolis immeditately instead of waiting until next year. . . . The salary limit in the new Dixie Professional Football League will be $500 per month.

Odditorium

There are two towns named Norfolk in professional baseball. . . . Both belong to the Yankee farm system. . . . Also, there are two towns named Columbus. . . . Both belong to the Cardinal chain.

Sports Cocktail

Last official act of Tedd Mann as Duke publicity expert (he is leaving to join the Naval Reserve) was to nominate Steve Lach, the backfield star, for the All-America. Well, we'll remember Steve. . . . There have been four aces shot so far in the Peter Dawson ringer.

ASHVILLE WINS OVER HOSPITAL IN HIT SPREE

Glancing at the score you might think it was an early season football game, but, no, it was only that wild affair of so-called baseball at the North Warren diamond Saturday when the Ashville, N. Y., nine registered a 20-12 defeat of the State Hospital aggregation.

Both sides had two touchdowns (twelve runs) at the end of the regulation nine innings, but an eight run onslaught in the top half of the tenth by the visitors and North Warren hopes sagged like a victim of one of Joe Louis' "kills."

Jim Rose pitched for the losers and L. Brown tossed for the winners. Neither was exactly impressive, both sides seeming to hit about at will, but Ashville managed to pole out no less than five home runs which mainly settled the issue.

The winners had eighteen safe knocks; North Warren claimed seventeen. Every man on the Ashville club hit and scored at least once.

"Otie" Marlett, who has been out for a month with a dislocated shoulder, returned to the lineup for the Hospital Sunday only to injure it again when he and the first baseman fell over the sack while Marlett was trying to get back to first on a throw from the pitcher to the first baseman.

"Rabbit" Swanson rapped out four singles for a perfect day at bat which might have been useful had it not been that four errors tossed the lead away several times giving Ashville added life.

WOOD BEATS GHEZZI FOR MYTHICAL TITLE

Girard, O., Aug. 4—(AP)—Craig Wood, covering up his 39 years with youthful vigor, today reigned over the world of golf as a climax to one of the greatest comebacks in the history of the game.

Winner of the National Open and Masters' tournaments, but eliminated in the P. G. A. classic as he sought the coveted "triple," the blond veteran took the shortest detour to his goal.

Shooting nine under par, he walloped Vic Ghezzi, the pro king, in a special 72-hole match for the unofficial world championship. Besides the mythical title, the 5 and 4 victory gave Wood $2,500.

Jamestown Loses To Warren Old Timers Again By 9-8 Score

It wasn't that Jamestown was lacking in reserve material, but rather seven wild pitches that turned the tide toward Warren's second old timer victory in eight days over the New York state crew yesterday at Wilder Field, Irvine.

As it was, in the first of the seventh and last inning, the visitors nearly tied the score with a three run rally on two hits and an error. The error cost two runs and the second hit brought home the hilltoppers' eighth tally.

There were lots of highlights throughout the contest, including Wilkinson's first inning meat hand stop of Spetz's hit for the second out, and "Paddy" Jackson's little legs hustling after a foul ball which bounced out of his glove after all that effort.

In regard to the game's success as a benefit for the U. S. O., it was fairly successful, but the crowd wasn't quite as large as was anticipated, though there were 179 paid admissions at the gate and nearly a hundred extra persons who bought tickets beforehand, therefore bringing the net proceeds up to a figure near $100.

The victory left the two teams standing with two wins for Warren, both this year, and one for Jamestown which they earned last summer.

Joe Gardner was the day's leading hitter for Warren with two for two, both singles. Pike Peterson was credited with the victory, and LeDestro was the loser.

Next Sunday the Akron Killian Celtics, who defeated the Forge a couple of weeks ago at Irvine, will return to try and duplicate the feat. The Celts made a reputation for themselves in this section as being one of the finest clubs to play ball in this vicinity in some time, and a big crowd is expected to watch the Forgers in an effort to gain revenge over their recent conquerors.

FORGERS WHIP CHAUTAUQUA BY SCORE OF 8-5

In a special game at Chautauqua Saturday afternoon the National Forge continued to better its record for the season with an 8-5 triumph over the Chautauqua ball club.

Three runs in the first, two in the third, and three more in the ninth gave the Forgers a comfortable margin. Chautauqua scored four times in the fifth and once in the ninth.

"Diz" Hines did the tossing for Irvine with Mack and Steve Massa dividing the chores behind the bat.

Next Sunday at Irvine the Forge will seek vengenace against the Akron Killian Celtics in a single game. The Celts beat Irvine at Wilder Field three weeks ago.

MADE UP TO KILL

by Kelley Roos

Chapter Seven

"Author, Author"

"NO," said Detective Peterson. "They doesn't know anything about it at all. And that's about as far as I've got on this case. They was talking to the checkroom girl at during the second act intermission. I checked on him as soon as I saw him in your apartment this morning."

Jeff's mouth fell open. "Checked up on me? Why?"

"Because," Peterson said, "you look like the type that would poison a girl."

Jeff stared at him speechless and then at the rest of us for reassurance. We couldn't help laughing and it felt good to laugh.

At the wall mirror Jeff inspected his face minutely, as though he had never noticed it before. He rubbed his chin. "It's because I need a shave. I always look like the killer type when I need a shave." His confidence in himself seemed to have been restored.

"Peterson," Bowers said, "what is this Lee Gray business about?"

The detective smoothed open the paper that he still held in his hand. "We found this note in Carol Blanton's purse. It seems to be a warning. It says: 'Meet me in front of the Broadhurst. I have got to see you right after the play. I can't tell you in a note what this means.' It's signed Lee Gray. This Lee Gray might have known what was in store for Miss Blanton and this note might be meant for a warning. And then again it mightn't be. But I think it is."

"I said sweetly: "Wouldn't it be a good idea to ask Carol who Lee Gray is? After all, it was sent to her; she's the one who's likely to know."

"I'm going to ask her, Miss Rogers. Just as soon as she's able to answer."

We all turned at the creaking of the door. The man who stood there seemed to me the tallest man I'd ever seen. His parents, I thought inanely, must have been Basil Rathbone and a skyscraper. Perhaps it was partly because he was thin and long-necked and held his head so unbelievably high that he seemed so towering. He had brown hair and heavy-lidded eyes that were speckled colored, like tweed, and his mouth was thin and unpleasant.

I heard Clint Bowers say, "It's Mr. Morris, isn't it?" and I felt a nervous little tingle that was quickly followed by a surge of disappointment.

So this was our author. This was England's pet playwright. I hadn't expected him to look like that. He smiled with an obviously formed politeness as Bowers introduced us all to him. The smile didn't make him any prettier. Bowers ushered him into a chair and held out a chromium cigarette box. Taking a cigarette, Morris glanced at the brand and pointedly replaced it. His eyes roved the room and stopped at the detective.

"Mr. Peterson?" Somehow he managed even when he sat to give the impression of looking down on the people standing around him. "Peterson of the police. It was you who shattered my ears with a telephone call at ten this morning."

Peterson nodded. "Thanks for getting here."

"I was coming regardless of your request. It's a coincidence, I assure you. Now what is this about someone being poisoned? Someone besides the entire audience, I mean?"

We sat in startled silence. Phoebe turned sharply, her eyes blazing, to stare at him. Even Peterson was stopped by the colossal rudeness of this man who sat smiling, apparently oblivious of the shrapnel he had burst at us.

In a voice not quite level, Bowers said, "Carol Blanton was poisoned last night on the stage. There was morphine in the glass she drank from."

"Blanton? Which one was that?"

"The little girl who played Dina."

The Great Man

A SHADE of something that might have been annoyance swept over his face. "That's really too bad. She seemed to have some idea of what my play was about."

Peterson had had enough of that. He stood in front of Morris and, with both hands in his pockets, seemed to point a shaking finger in his face. "Who is Lee Gray?"

Morris lit a cigarette that he extracted from his pocket and smiled through a cloud of smoke. "I see. The direct method. Well, Lee Gray, is that the name? Sorry, Mr. Peterson, I've never heard of her."

We could hear Phoebe catch her breath. "Of her! Of her, did you say? Is Lee Gray . . . ?"

Peterson was eyeing Morris curiously. "Yes. It's a woman. The handwriting is definitely feminine. How did you know, Mr. Morris, that Lee Gray was a woman?"

Morris was annoyed. "I choose my pronouns at random, Mr. Peterson. The name Lee is a very common female name in England. So common that I shouldn't think of knowing anyone by that name."

"Is this your first visit to America?"

"Are there people who come here twice?"

From the way the detective looked at him then I could tell he wouldn't be inviting him out for Sunday dinner. Daggers were beginning to shuttle between them.

"I'd like you to stay in New York until we get this business straightened out, Morris."

"Sorry, I have other plans."

"What other plans?"

Morris stood up. "I will not be asked rude questions by stupid policemen."

"What other plans?"

Bowers was between them. "Surely, Mr. Peterson, you're not trying to connect Mr. Morris in any way with what happened here last night? He only arrived in New York late yesterday afternoon."

"That was in plenty of time."

"He's had absolutely nothing to do with this production. He's never seen Miss Blanton, nor any of the people connected with Green Apples, for that matter, before last night, isn't that right?"

"I assure you," Morris said in a smiling voice, "that if I had, my play should have been very differently cast. Am I suspected of having poisoned this Miss Blanton?"

Bowers interrupted quickly, "Of course not, Mr. Morris. It's merely . . . merely police routine more or less. Mr. Peterson has already established the fact that the poisoning was done by . . . by a member of our company and not by any outsider. That's so, isn't it, Mr. Peterson?"

Peterson nodded. "Right." He smiled complacently at our playwright. "However, Mr. Morris is not an outsider and I am including him in the company. He knew this play as well as anyone in the company. We know that it was possible for him to have been backstage during that intermission. I'm afraid, Mr. Morris, that right now you are as much a suspect as anyone who belonged backstage."

Morris seemed thoroughly amused. "Really, Officer, the only thing in which I'm interested is the theater. And the poisoning of one ingenue wouldn't help the American theater much."

"Apparently you didn't care for our production," Clint Bowers said. The deep hurt stood out on his face and cut through his voice. "It got rather good reviews."

"And Mr. Bowers got raves for his direction!" Phoebe put in stanchly, but her lips tremoled at the corners.

"Oh, was it directed?"

Carol Again

HATE flared in Phoebe's eyes as her face went white. The pencil she had been toying with cracked like a birthday party snapper in the silence of the room.

"Tell me Bowers," Morris continued. "This Eve North. Why's is she your mother?"

I couldn't bring myself to look at Bowers then, or Phoebe, or anyone. All New York had been asking that question, I guess, but they hadn't used the word "mother." And no one had used it anywhere near behind Clint Bowers back. When he spoke at last his voice was calm.

"I think that the critics were most unfair to Eve. She held the whole play together without starring herself. If at times she looked bad it was only to make someone else seem good. Eve North is the most unselfish actress I have ever known."

Morris shrugged. "Well, of course, I hope you have a run. After all, it is my play, although I scarcely recognized it."

"We'll try to do better for you tonight," I said bitterly.

"Please do. Only not for me. I'm leaving for Hollywood on the five o'clock plane. They've offered me more money than I knew existed and, although I'm fairly sure I'll loath it, I'm rather anxious to go."

"You'll stay in town," Peterson sounded like a burlesque on a tough cop, but he didn't look like one. "You'll do me that favor, Mr. Morris, so I won't have to go to the trouble of making you."

Morris looked at him through half-closed eyes. "Very well. Only I make one stipulation. I absolutely refuse to subject myself to another performance of Green Apples."

"You don't have to subject yourself to anything but New York."

The policeman flipped his hat on the back of his head and opened the door. Facing him was a pale little girl in a navy-blue suit and a turned-up hat.

We sat and stared at her as if she were a ghost. She put up one hand and grasped the open door but made no other move. Her eyes swept over the room. For a moment I thought that she would turn and disappear as suddenly and quietly as she had come.

And then we came to, and Bowers was dragging out a chair for her and Jeff was trying to make her drink a glass of water and Phoebe fluttered around helplessly. There was a nasty blurred introduction to Greeley Morris and everyone asked questions that no one tried to answer.

Carol said: "There's a taxi waiting downstairs. I didn't have any money."

Jeff took charge. "Let it wait. You tell us why you're running around the streets like this. When did you leave the hospital? Why aren't you in bed taking care of yourself?"

Carol smiled. Under her eyes were dark purple hollows and her mouth seemed tight and thin. "I'm all right, Jeff. And they discharged me at the hospital; I didn't escape. I'm not running around the streets, either. I just stopped in to tell Mr. Bowers that I could play tonight."

nation's women to stock up on silk hosiery, rayon yarn producers operated today under government orders to earmark 10 per cent of their output for silk users affected by a stop-production command from defense officials.

The purpose of the rayon order, the office of Price Administration and Supply explained, was to "avert complete dislocation" of the $250,000,000 silk processing industry and its 175,000 workers.

Hosiery mills will get 70 per cent of the rayon yarn set aside and the remaining 30 per cent will go to adjust hardships of present rayon customers or to manufacturers who had been using silk for other purposes than making hosiery.

Hosiery makers looked in vain for succor by the nylon industry, already working on huge backlogs of wholesale orders.

way, and in the Baltic and Black Seas.

It declared that Soviet submarines, attacking off the far north Norwegian island port of Vardo, sank an 8,000-ton German steamer "laden with arms and ammunition for the German-Finnish army."

The Russians also reported a German or Finnish submarine sunk in the Baltic, where Red navy torpedo boats were credited during the weekend with sinking 18,000 tons of German transports and tankers.

The communique declared, too, that during an aerial attack the night of August 1 Russian bombs exploded on docks at the Black Sea port of Constanta, where a German destroyer was anchored and damaged other shipping in the port.

On the battlefront the weekend brought a strong new pincers attack aimed at Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

The Russians declared the attempt to wrest from Russia the golden wealth of Ukraine wheat had failed because the Germans were unable to sweep in with the speed the coup would have required.

The fields already are golden ripe and the harvest, speeded by worker groups behind the lines, was reported flowing rapidly into granaries to be taken far back to safety.

Nazis Declare Railroads Are Being Cut Off

(From Page One)

"The remainder is facing dissolution."

On the southern flank:

The daily war bulletin said swift, deep stabs by German and Hungarian schnell truppen—(speed troops)—have cut off important Russian rail connections, and other dispatches indicated that the greatest German progress on the eastern front was through the ripening grain fields of the southern Ukraine, far below the provincial capital of Kiev.

Unofficial reports told of numerous "new encirclements" by tanks slashing through faltering Russian lines south of Kiev.

(The Russians have acknowledged new Nazi penetrations in the Ukraine, but declare the offensive has failed because the Germans lacked necessary speed to consolidate thetir gains. Two sides of a German nutcracker around Kiev, however, are admitted to be near Korosten, 80 miles to the northwest, and Bel Tserkov, a bare 50 miles to the south.

There was no indication of the number of Russians claimed to be caught in the German pockets in the Smolensk salient but other communiques have told of Soviet forces isolated, surrounded and wiped out by one.

As for the northern sector, Sunday's High Command communique said 10,000 Russians were captured west of Lake Peipus in Estonia along with many tanks, cannon and supplies.

Adding to this, DNB said advancing Nazis captured vital territory, killed 2,300 Russians and seized thousands of prisoners and 71 tanks in an unstated northern area.

It told furthermore of the capture of the commanding general of a Red army corps, but did not give his name.

Another guarded claim was that a fractional but nonetheless important part of the outer defenses of Leningrad had been "liquidated."

Frontline dispatches stressed that everywhere the Russians were resisting bitterly and incurring heavy losses. There were intimations, too, that the campaign in the east was costing the Germans many sacrifices.

DECLARES GERMANY READY TO COLLAPSE

London, Aug. 4—(AP)—Camille Gutt, finance minister of the Belgian government in exile, in a BBC broadcast tonight said he believed that a sudden German collapse "is no longer so far off."

"We have now started on the road to victory," he said. "Nobody can name the dates, but the day is no longer so far off when the Germans, realizing as in 1918, their losses, their failures, their shame, will crack up all of a sudden, and collapse because, let us not forget it, they are the same as 27 years ago."

Gutt said the German people "did not believe Russia would put up a fight, and God, how she fights."

Pilot training under the auspices of the government is provided in 900 training centers.

BURGLARIES ADMITTED BY TWO ALTOONA MEN

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 4—(AP)—Police Lieut. L. W. F. Haberstroh said today that during two days of questioning two men had admitted staging a series of burglaries while driving from Ardmore to Altoona last week.

Haberstroh said the men still are being questioned and that he will not file formal charges until the police investigation is completed. He accused the men of thefts at Ardmore, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Lewistown, Huntingdon and Altoona. A map on which the men marked out their trip showed they also visited Bethlehem, Allentown, Berwick and Bloomsburg, he said. Two Ardmore detectives came here to file a detainer against them on burglary charges.

GUNMAN KILLS THREE IN SEATTLE SALOON

Seattle, Aug. 4—(AP)—A jitter-fingered gunman cut loose with deadly bursts of pistol fire in a dingy little night club saloon just before daybreak Sunday and, when the smoke cleared there were three dead men sprawled around the bar and seven others, including the gunman, lay wounded.

Just what mental quirk caused the gunman, who entered the basement club with the admitted intention of robbing it, to abruptly start firing into the crowd around the bar was something that had not been explained. No one, apparently, made any attempt to resist.

Slain were Monte F. Brown, 61, vice president of the Seattle Daily Journal of Commerce; Gus Galmatos, 48, bartender, and John Linder, a bystander.

SABOTAGE SUSPECTED IN THEFT OF TOOLS

No plan has been made for them to meet, the spokesman said, in view of the fact Kent is on a "scheduled mission."

Around New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—People ask me, "What is this Miguelito Valdes like?"

That was a stumper. I didn't know who Miguelito Valdes was. Then someone wrote in from Ohio and wanted to know if he was in "Panama Hattie."

No, he isn't in "Panama Hattie," but when I heard the name again I thought I'd better find out about him. I'm supposed to know a little of what goes on in this town. It seemed for a moment a new hero had zoomed up and everybody but this department knew all about him.

WE FOUND him with that old Spaniard and caricaturist, Xavier Cugat. Have you got a pencil? You can take him right off our notes and you'll know all about him:

Miguelito Valdes is 73 inches tall and weighs 197. . . . He has long, straight, jet black hair. . . . He looks, and sings, like a suddenly tamed and happy ex-savage.

Mike—let's call him Mike for short—is a "tabu" singer . . . His specialty and stock in trade are Afro-Cuban melodies, with the half wild chant of the veldt and the rhythmic tonal gyrations of the West Indies.

He was born in Havana, son of a Mexican mother and a Spanish-Cuban father. . . . He got his physique on the Havana docks, indulging in occasional pier brawls and competing in almost daily "concurso" contests. . . . This is a pastime where contestants try to sing each other down. . . . In some of our more elegant night club precincts in New York, we call this coon-shouting.

But on the Havana docks they shouted in impromptu coinages and improvised verses. . . . He shouted to the tunes of small drums, or to maracas, claves or guitars. . . . Sometimes to the tune of all at once.

THEN Mike got the urge to become a prizefighter. He read an account of how much coin Joe Louis gets for one of his matches, and he started out to emulate him. To make a long story short, Mike did not attain the title. . . . But he did become a corking good guitarist, and a singer of Latin tunes.

Now you see and hear him with Cugat. . . . If you are in New York, you find him at the Waldorf. . . . If you are elsewhere, you can find him on the radio with Cugat or in the phonograph record shops. . . .

Some of his best known numbers are "Bruce Manigua," "Macumije," "Babalu," and "Negra Leonor."

Mike has only been in the United States a year. . . . His English is not good, but neither is it bad. . . . He is fascinated by New York's styles in tailoring, and his wardrobe grows alarmingly.

In fact, he likes it here so well he thinks he'll stay.

Carmen Lombardo, brother of Guy Lombardo, the orchestra leader, has altered his style of singing. . . . He has honed off the edges of those harsh R's and taken the quiver out of his voice. . . . Bravo!

STATE FORESTS PROVE POPULAR FOR PICNICKERS

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—The trend of campers and tourists to state forest recreational areas this summer is far greater than at any time in the history of the department, according to John R. Williams, director of parks, Department of Forests and Waters.

For those who spend the weekend in rest and recreation, and their vacations in the open, many pleasant camp sites may be found within the 1,654,000 acres of state forests. No "Keep Out" signs are found within the state forests. Those who take their cameras into the woods will find countless opportunities for photographing game and birds in their native haunts, and a paradise for the scenic photographer.

The department maintains 192 cabins within the recreational areas which may be rented for a limited number of days not exceeding 15. Demands for these cabins have been so great that all have been rented for the entire summer season.

The possibilities for camping, nature study, and exploration of the state forests are so great that many visitors return year after year, seeking out new grounds, never covering the same areas twice. The state forests afford the best scenery and the best camp grounds and are easily reached from the main highways. The visitor of moderate means is not required to finance an expensive western or northern trip, but may enjoy the advantage of some scenic portions of Pennsylvania within a day's travel.

There are now 3401 permanent camp sites on the state forests leased by citizens of Pennsylvania at nominal rates. With each of these camp sites goes about one-fourth acre of land. This means that more than 800 acres of the state forests are leased to campers, hunters, fishermen and other people who enjoy the outdoors in the forests of the commonwealth.

AMERICANA ★ INDIAN LEGENDS ★

By RAY PEACOCK

AP Feature Service Writer

NO town in America leads a well-rounded existence without an Indian legend . . . a legend complete with a tree-grown spot where one may stand and say impressively, "Here, this is where it happened."

Who cares whether the legend is true, or that almost all Indian legends sound alike? Grant me the right to believe the one about my town, and I'll believe the one about yours.

Mine is about a Wisconsin village on the Mississippi, a tiny place called Maiden Rock, and there it was on a high bluff overlooking the river—my grandmother taught me to believe—that fair Wenona, daughter of Red Wing, leaped to the rocks below so that she could join young White Eagle in the happy hunting grounds.

Of course it reads like your town's legend, and why not? The dramatic motivation for most of them is love for an enemy (i.e., member of a rival tribe) or conflict between mortal and immortal (being of the days when the spirits enjoyed a greater prestige than at present).

It's a good story and it always has been a good story, one that novelists have been hacking away at ever since Adam first needed an alibi and discovered the value of an imagination.

The same sort of thing could happen today. White Eagle's trouble was that he belonged to the wrong party. He was a Chippewa, and Red Wing, who was a Dakota, wanted him to stay the hell out of his ward. I've stood on the very spot where the Dakotas liquidated White Eagle with an arrow, stood where Wenona leaped. And it's a nasty drop.

Other people also must have believed the legend, for most of the major and minor members of the cast had cities and towns named after them. All but poor White Eagle. He was forgotten for a long time. Then they named a gasoline after him.

RUSSIAN PLANES AND WARSHIPS DELIVER BLOWS

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 4.—Russian planes and warships were declared today to have dealt smashing blows to German naval forces on three seas as the Red army battled fiercely against a new Nazi-power-drive toward the heart of the grain-golden Ukraine.

Overnight, a noon communique reported, fighting centered in the Bel Tserkov and Korosten sectors, where the Germans are driving a two-pronged attack toward Kiev, and in the Smolensk and Estonian areas, where the front apparently was more stabilized.

The communique said a Russian tank detachment smashed through German forces which were attacking a town identified only as "N" on the northwestern front, killing at least 1,000 Germans and littering a vast field with the wreckage of more than 100 German tanks and armored cars and quantities of field artillery.

Riding a cloud screen over Moscow, some Nazi bombers were reported to have broken through the blacked-out capital's defenses last night for the 11th raid in two weeks.

Some fires were started. But the Russians said damage to military objectives was prevented by fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns which went into action to get more showpieces for the open air museum of wrecked Nazi planes heaped in a Moscow square.

Two bombers were hauled to the heap after a raid Saturday night.

A Moscow midnight communique reported the latest of intensified air, surface-craft and under-sea attacks on German naval forces in the Arctic ocean north of Nor-

Pennsylvania Governor Has Short Time to Act on Remaining Bills

Must Approve or Disapprove 120 Measures in Next 10 Days; Truck Weight and Milk Inspection Laws Are Included

LOCAL OPTION VOTES

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—(AP)—Pennsylvania's chief executive had 120 bills confronting him today as he entered the final 10 of the 30 days allotted him to approve or disapprove the acts of the 1941 general assembly.

Two of the measures awaiting the signature or veto of Governor Arthur H. James provoked far more than the normal share of debate during the long session. They were measures to increase the weight of motor trucks from 39,000 to 42,001 pounds and to set up a seven-member state advisory dairy council to frame uniform statewide milk inspection laws.

Passage of the truck measure by the general assembly brought charges by Senator Anthony Cavalcante (D-Fayette) of the existence of a "criminal conspiracy," while the milk measure was attacked by city health authorities as detrimental to public health.

Farmer-proponents replied that it would do away with the "multiplicity" of inspections that now confront them.

Two measures dealing with parole also are before the governor. One would appropriate $25,000 for an investigation of the systems used in Pennsylvania and other states. The other would set up a state parole board with a $400,000 appropriation and give it wide powers.

While Governor James entered his final period on legislation, Pennsylvania voters entered their last week to registed for the September 9 primary. The deadline is August 9.

Included are approximately 140,000 Pennsylvanians in the nation's armed forces who will be able to exercise their right of franchise under bills signed last week by the governor. They, too, must make arrangements to cast their ballots by mail before the August 9 deadline.

Miss S. R. M. O'Hara, secretary of the commonwealth, said copies of the new legislation and a special bulletin on military ballots will be sent to the 67 county election boards immediately. She urged that service men desiring to vote get in touch with their county election boards at once.

Competing with the judicial races for prominence at the primary are local option ballots in 81 communities. A year ago 500 referendums were held.

QUARRY WORKER ADMITS ATTACK ON DRUG CLERK

NO FORMAL CHARGES

Lock Haven, Pa., Aug. 4—(AP)—Police authorities announced today that a 33-year-old quarry worker admitted he grabbed Mrs. Georgette Welty, a 23-year-old drug store employe in an alley last night —the fourth young woman to be molested here since mid-June.

Solution of the fourth attack case was announced by Sheriff D. Edward Grenoble, Chief of Police Martin J. Peters, and Detective Sergeant R. O. Parsons, of the state police after questioning the man in jail.

They said placing of a formal charge against him would be deferred until the return of District Attorney Barrett Haag, now out of the city.

The officers said that Mrs. Welty gave Deputy Sheriff Glenn Adams a description of the man, which enabled them to arrest him, and that she later identified him.

Mrs. Welty was taken to a hospital for treatment for shock and later released. Attendants said she was not otherwise harmed.

Mrs. Welty has been working in Lock Haven for about three months. Her home is in Williamsport.

The attack occurred in an alley near the center of the business section. The young woman told police she sensed some one was following her as she took a short cut to the drug store to go to work and turned around just in time to meet her assailant.

Breaking away after a brief scuffle in which her shirtwaist was ripped, she fled to Bellefonte ave-

CHARGES ARMY DESIRES TO SEND FORCES ABROAD

FILIBUSTER THREAT

Washington, Aug. 4—(AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) charged today that the Army was waiting for the pending service extension bill to pass so that it could offer legislation authorizing the use of selectees and Guardsmen outside of the western hemisphere.

The Montanan, long a foe of administration foreign policy, said he was agreeable to a prompt vote on the extension bill, but he promised an energetic opposition filibuster against any subsequent proposal for use of the men beyond hemisphere confines.

In raising the hemisphere issue Wheeler sided with Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the Senate naval committee who also contended that the Army had such plans.

Wheeler and Walsh were challenged by Senator Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, who informed reporters that, to his knowledge the army was contemplating no such request to Congress.

Walsh, in a statement asserted that Congress did not know whether the Army was being created for defense or for aggression. He said further that the high command wished to lift the existing hemisphere restriction and that "the omission of this request from the pending resolution does not mean that the idea has been abandoned."

Walsh declared that this proposal "has merely been postponed to quiet opposition" against the pending legislation.

The bill, as drafted, would empower the president to extend indefinitely the service of regular enlisted men, selectees, reservists and National Guardsmen until such time as Congress terminates that authority.

However, a majority of the Sen-

ORDER STRIKERS BACK TO WORK IN FOUR PLANTS

By the Associated Press

AFL unionists of 4 midwest ordnance plants were ordered back to work by their union officials today after Saturday and Sunday "holidays" which a union chief described as occasioned by misunderstandings.

Members of some locals at munition plants in St. Louis, Kansas City and Plum Brook and Ravenna, Ohio, failed to report for work after the War Department notified them their overtime pay henceforth would be time and a half instead of double.

John Coyne, president of the AFL executive council for the building trades department, said the workers would be back on the job today in conformity with a July 22 agreement between his division and the War Department making time and a half a uniform overtime rate for such unions.

Elsewhere there were these week end labor developments:

Tampa, Fla.—The Gulf Coast Metal Trades Council (AFL) ratified a two year wage agreement covering ten gulf coast shipyards. The pact would give the workers an average ten per cent pay increase.

Newark, N. J.—Members of CIO's Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, overriding a secret ballot of last week, accepted a proposal by the defense mediation board for a contract at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Kearny, N. J. The union, which claims 14,000 members in the plant, accepted a modified union shop, vacation adjustments and a 12 per cent pay raise.

ESCAPED YOUTH IS CAPTURED IN PHILLY

Philadelphia, Aug. 4—(AP)—George Clark, 19, one of two youths who escaped from the new Pennsylvania Industrial School at White Hill a week ago, was captured today by Philadelphia police.

The other youth, Waverly L. Browder, 20, of Roxborough, gave himself up voluntarily Friday.

Clark was taken into custody at 2 a. m. at the home of an aunt. Detectives said he would be returned to White Hill at once.

In making their escape, the first from the new institution, the youths slugged a guard on the head. The guard was in a hospital for several days.

TYPHOON REPORTED OFF ISLAND OF GUAM

Guam, Aug. 4—(AP)—A typhoon swept past the island of Guam today, causing extensive damage to the United States Marine post and a crop loss greater than the typhoon of last November. No lives were reported lost.

Center of the typhoon was ten miles east of here, where the wind reached a velocity of 120 miles an hour and the barometer dropped to 28.64.

(Pan American Airways radio at San Francisco reported the velocity of the wind at Guam at 100 knots.)

GASOLINE BLACKOUT OBSERVED

Most Pennsylvania Motorists Accept Cheerfully Stoppage of Sales from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m.; No Official Judgment of Success or Failure of Plan from Washington

FEW OPEN TO SERVE COMMERCIAL TRADE

By the Associated Press

A few Pennsylvania motorists grumbled over inconvenience—but most of them accepted cheerfully last night the beginning of a stoppage of gasoline sales from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m.

Except in a few cases, the 14,031 gasoline stations across the state closed promptly at 7 p. m.

By agreement retail dealers associations a small number of stations remained open to supply fuel for motor freight trucks, taxicabs and emergency vehicles such as ambulances. It was estimated that 2.5 per cent of the 5,800 stations in the Philadelphia area stayed open to fulfill such needs.

IT CAME TOO LATE

Dunkirk, N. Y., Aug. 4—(AP)—For three weeks Stephen Jozwiak, manager of a Central avenue gasoline station, anxiously awaited arrival of a new electric sign to advertise his products at night. The sign finally came—just as Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes requested stations to close at 7 p. m. Jozwiak sadly complied.

As in other eastern states, many motorists made sure of filling their tanks before the stations closed, and in addition some took along extra five-gallon cans of gas.

Throughout the eastern seaboard, a welter of sectional reports, in the absence of any official judgment as to the success or failure of the first gasoline curfew appeared today to boil down to these points:

1. Virtually all service stations from Maine to Florida (except for half of New York City's independents) complied with Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes' request to close from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. daily as a national defense measure to conserve gasoline.

2. The day-time sale of gasoline everywhere along the eastern sea-

104TH CAVALRY ENROUTE SOUTH FOR MANEUVERS

Indiantown Gap, Aug. 4—(AP)—A long line of 104th Cavalrymen—riding scout cars and motorcycles instead of horses—were en route today to the scene of war maneuvers in Caroline county, Virginia, approximately 221 miles away.

First units of the cavalry left this reservation at 11 p. m. (EST) last night and 15 minutes later the last vehicle pulled out of the reservation on the southward trek. Officers said everything went off "right on schedule."

Accompanied by an escort of the state motor police, the unit commanded by Col. Albert H. Stackpole, Harrisburg, proceeded directly to the capital before swinging south toward their camp near Bowling Green, Va.

Scheduled to leave several hours after the 104th was a special detachment taking twelve 75mm cannon to the 28th Division's anti-tank battalion, which left camp Saturday for maneuvers which will last until September 9. Two officers and 40 men were detailed to take the artillery south to augment the 36 wooden 37mm cannon with which the outfit is "armed."

The "blitz-busters" are due at Camp A. P. Hill, near Bowling Green, some time today.

The 1100 men and 200 vehicles under the command of Major Carl Peters, Bradford, reached their first bivouac at Middleburg, Va., safely.

Comprising the 104th outfit were the headquarters troops and the second squadron, comprised of D,

EXPECT BIGGEST TAX BILL TO BE APPROVED TODAY

President Appears to Have Strengthened Chances for Elimination of Joint Income Tax Return Provision in Act

PROPOSALS REJECTED

Washington, Aug. 4—(AP)—Passage by nightfall of the $3,529,200,000 tax bill, stiffest in national history, was the goal of House leaders, but President Roosevelt appears to have strengthened chances for elimination of the provision requiring all married persons to file joint income tax returns.

In an eleventh-hour appeal to the House ways and means committee, the chief executive suggested three changes in the revenue measure, including modification of the joint return provision so as to exempt income actually earned by either husbands or wives, but the committee rejected all three proposals by "decisive majorities."

Nevertheless, informed legislators forecast that as a result of the president's action, the already strong opposition to the joint return provision could count on picking up additional votes.

Mr. Roosevelt also suggested committee revision of the excess profits tax so as to hit certain types of wealthy corporations harder and the lowering of existing individual income tax exemptions from $800 for single persons to $750 and from $2,000 for married persons to $1,500.

However, the House has already agreed upon drastic parliamentary procedure for consideration of the bill and this will conclude direct action on any of the president's suggestions. Under the rule adopted, the only amendments that can be voted on are those recommended by the ways and means committee.

The one exception is the agreement for a separate vote on the joint return provision, but here the rule allows only acceptance or rejection—not modification, as Mr. Roosevelt suggested.

Informing the president of the committee's decision to make no further changes in the bill, Chairman Doughton (D-NC) said he had been "very greatly surprised" by the executive's criticism of the

SOLDIER IS KILLED IN GUARDHOUSE RIOT

Fort Knox, Ky., Aug. 4—(AP)—A soldier was wounded fatally in a guardhouse riot here Wednesday night in which guards were forced to turn a fire hose on 350 milling prisoners after several rifle shots fired over their heads failed to restore order.

Death of Pvt. Carl B. McClellan, 19, of Bicknell, Ind., was disclosed yesterday by Col. N. Butler Briscoe, post commander, as funeral services for the youth were held at Bicknell.

Colonel Briscoe said McClellan was struck in the left shoulder by a ricochetting bullet fired by one of the four guards.

Ballistic tests will be made on the guards' rifles to determine which fired the fatal shot and the man responsible will be tried on a manslaughter charge by a military court, the colonel said.

New York, Aug. 4—(AP)—Guy J. Swope, retiring governor of Puerto Rico, arrived from the island possession today on the Porto Rico liner Coamo.

Improvement of conditions in Puerto Rico, he said, required "considerable industrialization, with the most cooperative help and attention of the federal government."

Squadron Including Capital Battleship Warspite Reported Sighted in Gulf of Siam, Presumably Countering Japan's Thrust into French Indo-China; Halt Japanese Shipping

LINERS PREPARE FOR SPEEDY DASHES HOME

By the Associated Press

A British naval squadron including the 30,600-ton battleship Warspite was reported without confirmation today to have been sighted in the Gulf of Siam, presumably countering Japan's thrust into French Indo-China and toward other bases within striking distance of Britain's great fortress of Singapore.

At the same time, Japan was reported to have taken an ominous new step in the Far East crisis by cancelling all steamship departures for the United States, leaving about 600 American citizens stranded in the island empire.

Warspite, if it is actually in Asiatic waters, is the first capital ship the British Royal Navy has sent east of the Suez in many years.

There was no immediate explanation for the Japanese action in suspending steamship communication with the United States.

Simultaneously, the Japan Times and Advertiser, organ of the Tokyo foreign office, said the Japanese government next week was likely to invoke a complete national economic mobilization to cope with United States and British economic pressure.

POTOMAC TAKES PRESIDENT ON WEEK'S CRUISE

New London, Conn., Aug. 4—(AP)—The White House yacht Potomac rode the Atlantic ocean today, carrying a sea-loving president on a vacation cruise.

President Roosevelt was free to get into old, loose clothes and a battered hat, and to fish, read or nap, as he pleased.

The movements of the Potomac were screened in secrecy after the chief executive was piped aboard at the naval submarine base here last night and she sailed away for a week or 10 days on salt water. The White House had asked that press and radio refrain from reporting the boat's position.

A special train which brought Mr. Roosevelt from Washington to New London was moved to Boston and held there so he could hurry back to the capital should world events dictate that the cruise be cut short.

Talk of Major Shortage of Sheer Hose Is Decried by Manufacturers

BY ED WEGMAN

New York, Aug. 4—(AP)—Some hosiery manufacturers today decried talk of a major shortage in sheer stockings within the next year or so, but differentiated between "sheer" and "all-silk."

One large silk stocking producer said categorically "there will be no shortage of sheer wear for the women of this country."

He estimated that under present conditions the supply would be sufficient for at least six months. The supply could be made to last at least two years, he pointed out, however, by altering silk content and production methods.

Lee I. Robinson, president of the Robinson Hosiery Mills, said the government order freezing stocks of raw silk left hope for hosiery men, since most large mills had at least a four weeks' supply in their plants. Silk in the hands of throwsters, the men who process the baled silk as it is received in this country, making it ready for spinning, totals another five or six weeks' supply, he said. In addition, there are huge stocks of hosiery in the warehouses of both manufacturers and retailers, accumulated during recent price fluctuations.

MEADVILLE MAN ARRESTED AFTER DOUBLE THEFT

William Bagen, 21, of Meadville, was arrested early Saturday morning by Private B. A. Reeder of the local barracks of the state motor police, following an all-night escapade during which time he stole a truck and car, damaging both, and also robbed George's Gas Station, Meadville, where he is employed, of the entire receipts for Friday.

Bagen is reported to have visited a tap room, after which he stole a Pepsi-Cola truck in Meadville and drove to Oakland Beach, Conneaut Lake, where he had an accident with the vehicle. Returning to Meadville, Bagen is charged with the theft of the day's receipts from the gas station and also the theft of a 1939 Buick sedan, owned by Harold Braymer, Meadville.

Allegedly headed for Boston, Bagen headed for Warren and picked up a hitch-hiker, James F. McGee, of Chandlers Valley, just east of the Glade bridge.

Just west of Roystone Bagen hit a culvert and plunged into a ditch, completely demolishing the Buick and badly injuring McGee, who is reported to have received several broken ribs and internal injuries.

At a nearby gasoline station, Bagen was arrested by Private Reeder. He was turned over to the Meadville police to answer two charges of burglary.

McGee was treated at home.

A short time later, police said, the man came out of the alley and told on-lookers that he had seen the attack and knew who did it. Becoming suspicious of his actions, several youths trailed him while others called city police who arrested him several blocks from the scene.

Adams and Sheriff D. Edward Grenoble were joined in the questioning of the suspect by Detective Sergeant R. O. Parsons of the state police, who came here Saturday following an attack on Miss Emily Williams, 28-year-old summer student at the Lock Haven State Teachers College.

The Jersey Shore student suffered a fractured skull Friday night when she was struck down from behind while walking along a darkened street.

Miss Dorothy Peters, 17-year-old high school student, had a similar experience last June 23, in the same vicinity. The week before, Miss Dorothy Orner, 26, was accosted in the area.

Congresswoman Rankin Still Stands on Her "No" of 1917

Anti-War Then, She Now Fights Intervention

By NEA Service

Washington, Aug. 4—Jeannette Rankin, first woman ever elected to congress, is back again—strangely silent this time. None of the lady lawmakers go in for oratory, but old-timers expected Miss Rankin to have plenty to say about administration measures to aid the Allies.

Her last congressional term was served from 1916 to 1918, and she is best remembered as one of the members of congress who voted against American entry into World War I. When the vote came in the house, she broke down and wept, while her male colleagues, looking helpless and embarrassed, waited for her to compose herself and miserably utter one word: "No."

VIEWS ON WAR HAVEN'T CHANGED

That "No" retired Miss Rankin from congress for 22 years, but her views haven't changed. With World War II less than a year old, Montana sent her back here.

She says: "More than half the voters in my state—53 per cent—are women. When women want something badly enough, they will organize, and when they do, they're more effective than men. Of course, I got more than 53 per cent of the votes, so it was men and women together that elected me. But don't forget—women are organized."

Her biography in the Congressional Directory, 77th session, is the briefest in the book: "Jeannette Rankin, Republican of Missoula, Montana, elected to the Sixty-fifth Congress in 1916, and to the Seventy-seventh in 1940." That is wonderfully restrained in a book where most people go on and on about themselves.

Restrained, too, so far as speech-making goes, she is working hard as ever for peace, and non-intervention, behind the scenes. As she puts it, "I have a couple of things up my sleeve."

SHE DOESN'T LOOK LIKE A CRUSADER

To enter or not to enter World War II may be the question before the house this year. If it is, Jeannette Rankin can probably be counted upon to become as vocal again as she was in the crusade for women's suffrage and against entry into World War I.

Miss Rankin doesn't look like a crusader. She has white hair, worn in a fluffy pompadour, a very quiet voice and a smile that spreads upwards in her long, slender face and lingers around her eyes.

Her office is severely business-like. She says it's going to stay that way: "This is a business office—not a parlor."

Gasoline Black-out Observed

board exceeded the total volume of an average August Sunday's daytime sales.

3. Traffic was just as heavy and in many places heavier than usual during the after-dark hours.

Stranded cars were numerous in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut and in some cases motorists hired horses to haul their stranded gasoline buggies.

New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, the Carolinas, Virginia, Georgia and Florida reported similar experience.

The surfew was observed quietly in the northwestern oil-producing counties. Petroleum dealers in the Bradford region, which produces more than 37,000 barrels of crude oil daily, pledged full cooperation. Bradford's oil is sent to the eastern seaboard, although some is refined there for local consumption. Most of the Oil City area output, about 3 to 4 per cent of the nation's, is used in the manufacturing of lubricating oils.

Some filling stations posted signs such as the following:

"For national defense this station will be closed from 7 p. m. until 7 a. m."

Rose Isenburg, 24-year-old registered nurse from Clearfield county ran out of gas in Pittsburgh while enroute to suburban Bellevue to attend a sick person. Police quickly arranged with a service station to furnish her enough gas to reach her destination.

In Philadelphia, a honeymooning couple on a motorcycle ran out of gas. Some motorists complained about lack of rest rooms. Lancaster and Hazleton were among eastern cities reporting a 100 per cent shutdown.

Dry tanks stranded five motorists in Fayette county. One man, who managed to reach a service station before his car sputtered to a stop, went to sleep in his car there, saying he'd wait for the 7 a. m. opening. Another man said he'd heard reports of the impending curfew, but didn't think they meant it."

All gasoline stations in the county closed at 7 p. m. last evening in compliance with the request last week of Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes for 200,000 stations on the eastern seaboard to close at seven o'clock each evening and not open before 7 a. m., effective starting yesterday.

Though Warren county was not within the radius, station owners all decided upon co-operating with Ickes and closed their stations also.

Motorists in the county were careful for the first night of the new arrangement, state motor police and two local garages reporting a number of cars seeking gasoline stations that were open, but receiving no calls from motorists completely out of fuel.

Whether or not the warning that gasoline stations were to close kept car owners on the alert for the first night remains to be seen, but if drivers co-operate as well as they did last night, there will be no difficulties encountered.

The Army's XP-51 is the first airplane in production which has the laminar flow wing. The design of the new wing is secret, but it is known that the approximate potential speed increase is close to 30 per cent.

The Army's P-38-D, 2200 horsepower fighter, has been named "Lightning" by the British because this plane is probably the fastest and the most effective fighter in either the British or United States flying corps.

At San Francisco, the $15,000,000 Tatuta Maru discharged the last of her $2,500,000 cargo of raw silk with emergency longshore crews working around the clock, rushed aboard 1,000 barrels of fuel oil and a ballast cargo, and sailed for Japan.

A Japanese tanker had previously sailed from San Francisco empty, the second to leave the United States without cargo.

At Seattle, the S. S. Heian Maru also piled her raw silk on the docks and was posted to sail as soon as loaded.

At sea, the Asamu Maru, which left Honolulu Friday with 140 American passengers and a $3,000,000 cargo of raw silk, maintained radio silence, under orders from Tokyo.

Dispatches from the Far East said departure of the Hikawa Maru, the Nitta Maru and other Japanese ships scheduled to sail for the United States had been postponed indefinitely.

WOMEN'S GROUP HOLDS MEETING AT YOUNGSVILLE

Youngsville, Aug. 2—The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church met Friday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. H. H. Husted. There was a large attendance. At the business session, plans were made for the holding of a fish dinner at the church Friday evening, August 8.

A generous offering was received at the quarterly mite box opening of the society.

The program opened with a song and devotional period lead by Rev. Dwight Jack, the pastor of the local church.

A vocal solo was sung by Miss Barbara Knapp with Mrs. Kenneth Chrispell, of Jamestown, N. Y., as accompanist. Mrs. Chrispell also accompanied the other numbers of the program.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Reed of Jamestown, formerly of Youngsville, were the out of town speakers. Mrs. Reed used as her topic "Our Debt to God" and Rev. Reed spoke on the missionary opportunity in the war torn world of today.

Mrs. Florence Chrispell gave a humorous reading, "Visiting the New Minister's Wife".

Mrs. Jack sang a beautiful solo and a violin number was given by Mrs. Clair Hendrickson.

The president lead in a brief memorial service for Mrs. Ed Babcock, aged member of the group for whom funeral services were held this week. Mrs. Babcock's mite box which she had prepared before her death was sent to this meeting by her daughters. At the close of this little service Miss Reba Metzger sang a musical interpretation of the Lord's prayer and Rev. Mr. Reed pronounced the benediction.

The co-operative dinner was served on long tables in the lawn and decorated in patriotic colors.

A number were present from the Irvine Methodist society and in addition to those mentioned on the program from Jamestown were Mrs. Anderson, president of the Brooklyn Heights W. S. C. S. and Mrs. Wheeler.

The Youngsville horse show committee met this week and plans were made looking toward a very fine show at the community fair the first week of September.

While it took us a week to reach San Francisco on our transcontinental bridge tour, we were not disappointed by the caliber of bridge played at the Pacific Bridge Week Tournament. Waldemar von Zedtwitz agreed with Mrs. McKenney and me that the defensive play in the tournament perhaps reached a higher standard on the average than in any other section of the country.

The stars of the first half of Bridge Week in San Francisco were Christine Arden and Jack Ehrlenbach of Los Angeles. They won the mixed pair championship, and with Marian Kaiser and Lou Mathe, they won the mixed team-of-four. They were also runners-up in the open pair championship.

Here is a nice defensive hand that helped Miss Arden win the mixed pair event. Ehrlenbach (East) won the opening lead with the ace of hearts, and South won the second with the king. Declarer cashed two top trumps, then shifted to the queen of diamonds.

This same situation was reached at several tables where South played two or three spades. In all other cases declarer made three, losing only the three aces and the king of diamonds. The defenders could find no way to develop two club tricks before dummy's diamonds were established.

But Miss Arden (West) allowed the queen of diamonds to ride to East, who took with the ace. Ehrlenbach led the deuce of clubs and South played the three. This is where Miss Arden made a fine play.

She followed with the queen, forcing dummy's king. Then she took the next diamond lead with the king and led the queen of hearts. South ruffed, but now had no entry to dummy. He had to lead away from his clubs, losing two tricks in the suit, and his score of 110 on the board was low.

BLACK WALNUTS GROW THRIFTILY IN THIS STATE

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—That black walnut trees are thrifty growers when planted on favorable sites is evidenced by measurements recently made by the Department of Forests and Waters, according to Chas. E. Baer, deputy secretary.

M. W. Nace, McConnellsburg, Fulton county, purchased 200 black walnut tree seedlings from the department in the spring of 1921, and planted them in a field near his home. The soil was fertile and had an under layer of limestone. Because of a large number of black walnut trees growing in the immediate vicinity, he decided to establish this plantation.

After twenty years about half the original trees remained, and these have an average height of over thirty-five feet. The average diameter at four and one-half feet from the ground is approximately five inches. Larger trees are six inches in diameter and thirty-eight feet in height. Two of the trees produced six bushels of large-sized nuts during the fall of 1940

Two plantations of black walnut trees in the Mont Alto State Forest, Franklin county, are making very satisfactory growth. After twenty years of growth, this stand was improved by the removal of many trees of inferior form. Thirty years after planting, the dominant trees have an average diameter of approximately nine inches and are forty-seven feet tall. A similar plantation was made in 1914, and measurements made twenty-five years later, showed that the volume consisted of thirteen cords of wood per acre. Some of the trees were over five inches in diameter and about thirty-six feet in height.

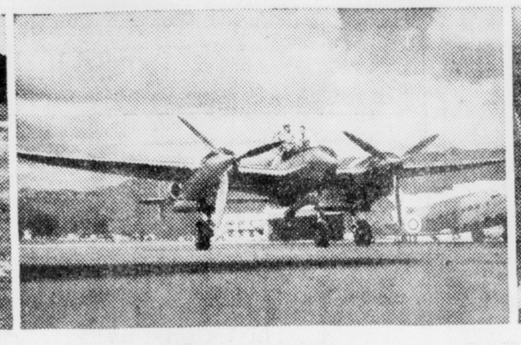
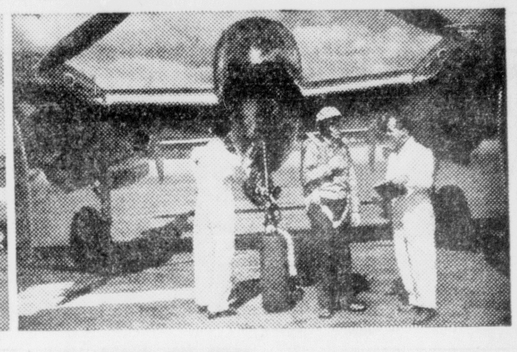
SIX, SEVEN MILES UP! In air no man can breathe—and live! Motors—now even pilots are "supercharged." On the stationary bicycle (above) Marshall Headle, chief test pilot of Lockheed, breathes pure oxygen for 30 minutes before a test flight in Lockheed's new interceptor—one of America's newest high-altitude fighters.



CLIMBS A MILE A MINUTE—dives at speeds which are Army secrets. They call her "Lightning." Test pilot Headle clambers into the cockpit, switches from a pocket oxygen flask to his cabin supply, and streaks for the stratosphere. He's test-flown 300 different planes. But when he lands, it's always . . . "Now for a Camel."



YOU CAN'T SEE HIM up there. You can scarcely hear the hum of his motors. Then his voice comes into the radio tower: "Headle—35,000 feet—diving now." And as he comes plummeting down in that shrieking power-dive, you just hope! Seconds later—yes, seconds—he's landing. And here he is (above) cool, calm, lighting up a Camel.

THE SMOKE'S THE THING!

The smoke of slower-burning Camels contains

"Less nicotine in the smoke means more mildness to me," says test pilot Marshall Headle (above), as he lights up his . . . and America's . . . favorite cigarette

THERE may be little traffic at 35,000 feet, but test-diving any new, untried plane is no Sunday joy-ride. No, not even for a veteran like Marshall Headle (above).

Naturally, cigarette mildness is important to Marshall Headle. And in the slower-burning cigarette of costlier tobaccos . . . Camels . . . he gets extra mildness—with less nicotine in the smoke.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—A gracious note has passed from the local commerce scene, perhaps never to return. The world moves on, tempus fugit, and John Miljan likes the movies.

There are filling stations, as you know, and filling stations. This was something extra-special in the line, out there on Sunset near the ocean. It wasn't the physical trappings of the place, which are still there, and it wasn't so much the smiling service idea ("Massage while you wait, sir?") which is pretty common everywhere. It was just that this station believed in that little personal touch which (I think I'm quoting somebody's ad) means so much.

John Miljan, working in the movies again on "An Obliging Young Lady," was a little sad about it. He reminisced:

"We had a great following out there. Nine men to service the cars, and whenever I could I'd go out and stick around to say "hello." The picture people in the neighborhood knew it was one station where they could always talk pictures. We used to sell gas regularly to Joan Crawford, Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, most of the people around that way. . . .

"AND the dog food department. Bill Wellman was always running out, so we stocked up, and pretty soon a lot of folks were depending on us to feed their dogs and cats. We carried birdseed, too. . . .

"And then there was the pet exchange. That just happened. One day a lady brought in a hurt squirrel that had fallen from a tree. She had it in a box and had fed it, and didn't know what to do with it so we took it in. I've still got that one, at home. But the other animals were just swapped around. One time we had a burro—Jack Holt took it—and a dog, a fox, a pheasant, chickens and ducks all at once.

"Somehow or other we got to be a sort of bureau of general information. When people wanted something and couldn't find it, they'd call. There was one man who wanted a flagpole, and he 'phoned in: 'I've got to find a flagpole, and I've looked all over town,' he said. So we asked what kind he wanted, steel or wood, and we found it for him.

"ANOTHER customer called up and said he was having trouble locating something he needed, at his price, and could we help? What was it? 'Alfalfa,' he said. Alfalfa, at a gas station servicing horseless carriages! But we found it for him."

This sort of thing couldn't last, of course. Miljan's partner heard the call of the Marines, and the actor, with movie work picking up, answered that call. A commercial chain has the old trading post and gossip center now, and you can't get dog food or birdseed or flagpoles or alfalfa there any more—just gas and oil and the usual things. If Jack Holt drove up and asked the smiling-service lads if they had any burros around today, the smiles would probably freeze—p o l i t e l y, of course.

You can't blame Miljan for being a little sad. I am, too.

GASOLINELESS NIGHTS

With little or no confusion to local motorists and service station owners the community joined others in the Atlantic seaboard states Sunday evening in what may be a long period of gasolineless nights. Complying with Secretary Ickes' request that the oil industry close 100,000 service stations from 7:00 p. m. to 7 a. m., local proprietors responded unanimously.

What effect the closing hours will have in sections where standard time is in effect was not touched upon in the Washington order, but it is understood tha stations in such areas will operate an hour longer in the evening than where daylight time is effective, and open an hour later in the morning.

Noting that Ohio is not included in the provisional closing hours, it is understood Pennsylvania motorists in towns bordering on that state are driving across the line after Keystone State stations go dark.

All this was ordered by Ickes in the hope that gasoline can be conserved, although the general opinion is that there is no shortage of gasoline in this country, but, on the contrary, a lack of tankers to carry the crude from Gulf and west coast ports to the seaboard. More than fifty tankers were diverted from these runs several weeks ago and turned over to England so the British could have a steady gasoline supply for their war efforts.

Already the oil industry has demonstrated that it is determined to give full cooperation. While the request called for voluntary compliance, it is anticipated that it will be followed by penalizing legislation and possible gas card rationing if the use of gasoline is not greatly reduced. The first three or four weeks under the new closing regulations should give some idea as to what to expect in the way of mandatory legislation to bring about the needed curtailment.

MORE ABOUT THE DAM

That all communities along the river do not share the apprehensions of a few citizens of Warren regarding the construction of the proposed dam at Kinzua is reflected in the following editorial taken from the Valley Daily News:

The Warren flood control dam, construction of which is almost assured as the result of action by the Senate, will prove one of the most effective units in the system designed to protect Allegheny Valley communities from the ravages of high water.

The dam, which is to cost approximately 35 million, will practically cut off the Allegheny at Warren from its headwaters since it will extend clear across the river. The resultant lake will extend into New York state and will afford excellent recreational facilities.

Not only will the dam be effective in diverting enough of the flow of the river to avert disaster in times of flood, but it will serve a most useful purpose in dealing with the evils of acid in the river during the summer or at any time when the stage of the stream is low. By the occasional release of water from the reservoir the acid can be diluted sufficiently to eliminate or minimize the damage that is done to plumbing and put an end to the wholesale destruction of fish life. Beyond that, the flushing of the river should end the ill taste which water from the Allegheny often possesses.

Government engineers have assured the people of Warren, naturally apprehensive about the storage of such a great head of water above their town, that the dam will be so constructed as to be perfectly safe. Warrenites, they say, need have no fear of a repetition of the Johnstown flood.

Down-river communities like Tarentum will welcome the news that the dam is assured because the numerous benefits in the way of flood control and purification. On the other hand, the hydro-electric possibilities of the dam should mean a lot to Warren as a potential manufacturing center. Not to be overlooked, either, are the recreational facilities the Warrenites will be privileged to enjoy on and along the shores of the huge lake.

NEW WEAPONS

It is most encouraging to see the Army come out with two new weapons which suggest that it has really been studying the needs of modern warfare.

First, a new carbine, a semi-automatic light rifle weighing only five pounds, and only three feet long. All infantry officers below the rank of major, all non-commissioned officers, and many special troops, engineers, machine gunners, and the like, will carry it.

Second, a new half-trac truck mountaing a 75-mm. field gun is already coming off the assembly lines. Such a weapon in the hands of France might have stopped the German tank blitz which broke through the French army. This gun could even fire point-blank with the truck in motion.

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 4—The more you read the less you know, and the more you follow the dope of the experts the more you believe that Big Bill Knudsen was right—"An expert is a mechanic away from home."

That general negation can be applied to military experts, political experts, all economists, experts on foreign affairs and particularly experts on the Far East. In the opinion of people who should know there ain't any such animal as that last.

An examination of the record of most so-called experts on the Far Eastern situation will prove this easily. A year ago they began predicting that the U. S. fleet would go to Singapore, that war between the U. S. and Japan was inevitable, and that the Japanese were ready to seize the Dutch East Indies any 15 minutes. On the general theory that if you predict a thing long enough and hard enough it will come true under the law of averages, all these things may happen. But don't do without eating until they do, for there are any number of reasons, military as well as economic, that they aren't going to come off instanter.

Whatever you think of the administratoin's policy or lack of policy toward the blind alley brawl in Europe, credit must be given where credit is due, and the policy Jwith regard to the Far East and particularly Japan has thus far been planned and executed with skill. The importance of the Orient in the international picture has not been overlooked, but the bait and the line played out to the Pacific big game fish has been well handled, beautifully timed and with just enough of the slack of appeasement so that fisherman Uncle Sam has not become fouled in his own line and dragged into the drink.

Economically, the actual freezing of Japanese credits and the threat of embargoes on oil and silk have been good pressure to make Tokio stop and consider. Actual embargoes would do the Japanese more harm than sending the fleet to Singapore.

Militarily, Japan is rated third most war-weary country in the world, Spain and Italy alone being ahead of her in that kind of despair. Furthermore, Japan is in the position of the big fish which swallowed the hook and can't spit it out.

She has an army of less than two million—1,600,000 under arms and another 200,000 or so called up. She has the manpower for an army of four million, but can't get the arms or equipment for them. That is, she has 57 divisions under arms and the most she can raise is 66, instead of the potential 200.

Information is perhaps none too accurate, but the best dope is that 10 divisions are in Manchukuo against two red banner armies of the Soviet made up of 26 infantry, 10 cavalry and four mechanized divisions. Thirty-seven Japanese divisions are occupied in China, one is in Korea, one on Sakhalin Island, three or four in Hainan and French Indo-China, and four or five at home. That's what the military experts call extreme dispersion.

Japanese mechanized forces are as bad if not worse than even the American. Japanese air forces of approximately 3600 planes are mostly 1939 models, copies of Ger-

Active operations of reconstructing the plant of the Allegheny Steel Tank Car company, destroyed by fire several months ago, will begin Monday and a crew of 20 carpenters will be put to work. The building and equipment will cost about $20,000 and when ready for operation will give employment to a score or more men.

Perez, Chilean Leader, Fought Revolt and War

JOSE JOAQUIN PEREZ, who rose from a diplomatic career to the presidency of Chile in 1861 weathered some severe storms during his 10-year tenure in office.

Despite opposition attempts to overthrow the government and a series of adverse events, Perez made a sincere effort to set the Chilean house in order. The government honored him philatelically in the 1911 stamp above.

Perez was born in 1800 in Santiago, Chile. He occupied several diplomatic posts, represented his government at both Paris and Buenos Aires.

He was minister of the treasury from 1845-49 and of the interior 1849-51.

On Sept. 18, 1861, he was elected president of Chile, was re-elected in 1866, and served until 1871. Under him, the moderate liberals began to take part in the government.

He endeavored to follow a policy of conciliation both with the Liberals and with the Araucanians, but the latter resented his colonization schemes and defied the government. Their leader, a French adventurer named De Tounens, was arrested and the revolt smashed.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

EIGHTH MONTH

August is the vacation month for many, the forgotten month for others, who call June and July the best summer months. August, like the other months, has its claims to fame, as shown in the following questions:

1. For what famous Roman was the month of August named?
2. What famous explorer sailed West from Spain on a voyage of discovery in August, during the 15th century?
3. An airplane inventor, a recent vice president and two presidents were born in August. Who are they?
4. What vital link in U. S. defenses was opened in August, 1914?
5. The first steamboat sailed on Lake Erie, and the first transcontinental automobile trip were made in the month of August. What years would you say these two events occurred?

Everybody Reads the Times-Mirror

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Before this dries, you are going to be hearing a lot about the CADS. I mean the Civil Air Defense Services.

A national committee headed by Capt. Gill Robb Wilson, who is also president of the National Aeronautic Association, has had plans for the CADS in the works for quite a while. For some reason the national defense people haven't turned on the green light for the CADS, but it's coming.

I saw a preview of the plans the other day. The underlying idea is to organize civilian aviation for an emergency.

Captain Wilson, writing in National Aeronautics magazine, gave a better description of civilian aviation in the United States than I can: "What is it? It is 82,000 certified pilots. It is 50,000 student pilots. It is 25,000 mechanics and airport personnel. It is 3,000,000 model builders. It is a light plane model industry. It is 22,000 certificated civil aircraft. It is 2,000 airports and landing fields outside those serving military and scheduled flying." The list goes on, including all the magazines, journals, and national and local flying organizations.

This is the backlog out of which civilian defense proposes to carve the CADS, with a "Wing" in every state, composed of flights, squadrons and groups in the smaller centers.

New Certificates

THE first step would be to have the Civilian Aeronautics Administration reclassify all airmen's certificates. The new certificates would require proof of citizenship, oath of allegiance to the United States, and such positive identification as fingerprints and photographs. And the first job of the CADS would be to see that no one took off or tightened a nut on an air jalopy without one of the certificates.

From there on, the CADS would take over the job of guarding radio range stations and the 2,000 airports which, not being military or scheduled airline airports, would not ordinarily be subject to military guard. The CADS also would learn how to make these airports unsuitable for enemy use in case of invasion.

A courier service, with men capable of flying everything from bombers and transports to messages in a capsule, would be organized.

A highway traffic patrol would be established in every area where congestion might occur, the CADS patroling such areas and notifying police and military authorities immediately by radio as to where jams were piling up.

Restricted industrial and defense areas would be patrolled constantly.

With the army and navy personnel tied up completely in disaster relief work where airplanes are necessary would be taken over by the civilian flyers.

They would also assist in search for missing military aircraft and give aid to pilots and crews forced down in remote areas.

Would Have To Keep Up

IN ORDER to accomplish all this, the CADS would have to keep their flight training and mechanical skill right up to snuff. The flyers would have to know every inch of terrain in their defense areas as well as that in any nearby areas into which they might be called. They would have to know something about military air maneuvers, types of planes, and a dozen other things with which the ordinary civilian pilot has only a slight speaking acquaintance at present.

A few areas, impatient at governmental delays, already have organized Wings along this line, notably New Jersey, Alabama and Long Island, where Roger Wolfe Kahn, noted sportsman pilot, is taking a lead in forming the group.

With the advice and under authority of state and local defense military authorities, these groups are ready to take the air. According to Captain Wilson, hundreds more will follow the minute they get the green light.

Grand Opening for White House Inn Is Being Held Tonight

Announcement was made today that "Dennie" J. Di Pierro has taken over exclusive management of the White House Inn, having acquired the interest of his former partner, "Kelly" Healey.

Observing the change in management, a grand opening will be held at the White House Inn tonight, with no cover charge being made. For the opening and for the entire week, a special floor show featuring O'Dare, Drew and Patricia, a versatile trio, will be presented. Also on the program will be Jack Duggan, the Texas cowboy, singing popular and old time songs.

The floor shows will be presented twice nightly, at 10 and 12, and an augmented orchestra will provide music for dancing.

The entire Inn has been redecorated and improved for the opening by the new proprietor.

FOREST TRACTS ARE ADDED TO NATIONAL AREA

The National Forest Reservation Commission at its last meeting approved the purchase of 112,870 acres of land consisting of 385 tracts located in 23 states and Puerto Rico. This purchase, Supervisor Hemingway reports, included 14,176 acres on Allegheny National Forest.

A 13,590 acre tract on the Allegheny offered by the Wheeler & Dusenbury Company was the largest single tract approved. It is located in Forest and Warren counties and was cut over some years ago when this company operated a large sawmill at Endeavor.

Two smaller tracts in McKean conty, totaling 336 acres, and one in Elk county of 250 acres were also approved. These latest additions bring the total purchases on Allegheny National Forest to 460,393 acres.

URGE TRUCKERS TO AID IN GAS SAVING PROGRAM

The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, in a bulletin to its members, today listed five ways in which truck operators can aid in the gasoline conservation program.

"It is up to each of you as individuals to accept responsibility for fuel conservation in your fleet," the P. M. T. A. bulletin said.

"As truck operators, here are some of the things you can do:

"1. Make your entire organization gasoline conservation conscious, by meetings, bulletin board announcements, notices, etc.

"2. In the shop adjust all points to give greatest fuel economy. Carburetor adjustments and other tuning-up processes should take into account that 'get-away' is not as important as fuel saving.

"3. In refueling, caution all workers not to fill tank too full, and lose gasoline through spillage.

"4. Don't send out half loads, or duplicate runs to make one or two deliveries. Use one large truck in place of two small ones wherever possible. Run full instead of partial loads to outlying points, if possible, serving them less often. Solicit the cooperation of shippers to have all pick-ups ready at one time.

"5. Drivers should cut off ignition at every stop. Don't leave motor running while parked at curb for deliveries. At stop light, or wherever tied up in traffic, continued 'gunning' of motor uses unnecessary gas. Slow starts can be made in second with less fuel consumption than the accelerated starts made in low."

GROCERIES ..and GUNS

EVERY day we Americans make millions of telephone calls—they may be for groceries or grass seed, pins or paint, coal or cold cream.

But today, there are thousands and thousands of other calls going over our wires—calls concerned with the defense of America! These calls may speed the construction of army camps, the delivery of machine guns and munitions—or even the building of a battleship or bomber!

This new load of telephone traffic is important to every American family. It must get a clear track and full speed ahead!

And so we ask that every telephone user cooperate to keep telephone service smooth and fast!

HERE ARE SOME SUGGESTIONS:

1. Don't trust to memory or to old lists for telephone numbers. It's best to look in the directory and make sure.
2. Answer the telephone promptly.
3. When you make a call, give the called party enough time to answer before "hanging up."
4. Try to avoid unnecessarily long conversations, especially if you are on a party line.
5. Be sure to hang up the instrument after every call. Failure to do so means your line is "busy"—though it may be doing nothing!

INSECTS CAUSE LEAF DAMAGING

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—The browning of black locust leaves in Pennsylvania this year did not result from frost but was caused by insects. This damage is particularly noticeable along the Susquehanna river. Research Forester Albert B. Mickalitis, of the Department of Forests and Waters, states that the feeding of locust beetles is responsible for the general brown condition. Grubs of this beetle also produce blister-like spots on the leaves.

The entire foliage of an infested tree may be killed twice in a season which considerably reduces the vigor of the tree, and in some instances causes its death. Since these pests have already done most of their damage, control measures during the current year are not advisable.

In the case of valuable shade trees, the beetle can be controlled by spraying during the month of May with arsenate of lead at the rate of four pounds mixed in fifty gallons of water.

man originals now obsolete, and 750 miles is still the effective range for bombers carrying bombs. From Saigon, French Indo-China, to Singapore is 840 miles and from Formosa or Canton to Manila is about the same. From Vladivostok to Tokio is 680 miles.

That would seem to leave it up to Japan's navy—and a right good navy, too—if Japan is to go places. She can, of course, ride off in all four directions. If she goes north and runs into the Soviet, there is plenty of trouble ahead. She can go farther into China at about the same rate she has gone in the last four years.

She can go south, against the Malay peninsula and Singapore and encounter a great many worries. The occupation of Indo-China can be considered as accomplished, and Japan might even penetrate Siam, but Singapore is something else again. Before Japan can tackle the Dutch East Indies, she must reduce Singapore, and it would take years.

To the east lie the Philippines. They are within range, and if Japan did not have her hands full in three other directions, they would be pie any time she wanted to help herself. Engaged as the Japanese are on three other fronts, a full shooting war, requiring complete coordination of sea, air and land forces, would keep the Japanese gentlemen very busy indeed for quite some time, sank you, prease.

So don't bet on war with Japan tomorrow.

GASOLINELESS NIGHTS

With little or no confusion to local motorists and service station owners the community joined others in the Atlantic seaboard states Sunday evening in what may be a long period of gasolineless nights. Complying with Secretary Ickes' request that the oil industry close 100,000 service stations from 7:00 p. m. to 7 a. m., local proprietors responded unanimously.

What effect the closing hours will have in sections where standard time is in effect was not touched upon in the Washington order, but it is understood tha stations in such areas will operate an hour longer in the evening than where daylight time is effective, and open an hour later in the morning.

Noting that Ohio is not included in the provisional closing hours, it is understood Pennsylvania motorists in towns bordering on that state are driving across the line after Keystone State stations go dark.

All this was ordered by Ickes in the hope that gasoline can be conserved, although the general opinion is that there is no shortage of gasoline in this country, but, on the contrary, a lack of tankers to carry the crude from Gulf and west coast ports to the seaboard. More than fifty tankers were diverted from these runs several weeks ago and turned over to England so the British could have a steady gasoline supply for their war efforts.

Already the oil industry has demonstrated that it is determined to give full cooperation. While the request called for voluntary compliance, it is anticipated that it will be followed by penalizing legislation and possible gas card rationing if the use of gasoline is not greatly reduced. The first three or four weeks under the new closing regulations should give some idea as to what to expect in the way of mandatory legislation to bring about the needed curtailment.

MORE ABOUT THE DAM

That all communities along the river do not share the apprehensions of a few citizens of Warren regarding the construction of the proposed dam at Kinzua is reflected in the following editorial taken from the Valley Daily News:

The Warren flood control dam, construction of which is almost assured as the result of action by the Senate, will prove one of the most effective units in the system designed to protect Allegheny Valley communities from the ravages of high water.

The dam, which is to cost approximately 35 million, will practically cut off the Allegheny at Warren from its headwaters since it will extend clear across the river. The resultant lake will extend into New York state and will afford excellent recreational facilities.

Not only will the dam be effective in diverting enough of the flow of the river to avert disaster in times of flood, but it will serve a most useful purpose in dealing with the evils of acid in the river during the summer or at any time when the stage of the stream is low. By the occasional release of water from the reservoir the acid can be diluted sufficiently to eliminate or minimize the damage that is done to plumbing and put an end to the wholesale destruction of fish life. Beyond that, the flushing of the river should end the ill taste which water from the Allegheny often possesses.

Government engineers have assured the people of Warren, naturally apprehensive about the storage of such a great head of water above their town, that the dam will be so constructed as to be perfectly safe. Warrenites, they say, need have no fear of a repetition of the Johnstown flood.

Down-river communities like Tarentum will welcome the news that the dam is assured because the numerous benefits in the way of flood control and purification. On the other hand, the hydro-electric possibilities of the dam should mean a lot to Warren as a potential manufacturing center. Not to be overlooked, either, are the recreational facilities the Warrenites will be privileged to enjoy on and along the shores of the huge lake.

NEW WEAPONS

It is most encouraging to see the Army come out with two new weapons which suggest that it has really been studying the needs of modern warfare.

First, a new carbine, a semi-automatic light rifle weighing only five pounds, and only three feet long. All infantry officers below the rank of major, all non-commissioned officers, and many special troops, engineers, machine gunners, and the like, will carry it.

Second, a new half-trac truck mountaing a 75-mm. field gun is already coming off the assembly lines. Such a weapon in the hands of France might have stopped the German tank blitz which broke through the French army. This gun could even fire point-blank with the truck in motion.

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 4—The more you read the less you know, and the more you follow the dope of the experts the more you believe that Big Bill Knudsen was right—"An expert is a mechanic away from home."

That general negation can be applied to military experts, political experts, all economists, experts on foreign affairs and particularly experts on the Far East. In the opinion of people who should know there ain't any such animal as that last.

An examination of the record of most so-called experts on the Far Eastern situation will prove this easily. A year ago they began predicting that the U. S. fleet would go to Singapore, that war between the U. S. and Japan was inevitable, and that the Japanese were ready to seize the Dutch East Indies any 15 minutes. On the general theory that if you predict a thing long enough and hard enough it will come true under the law of averages, all these things may happen. But don't do without eating until they do, for there are any number of reasons, military as well as economic, that they aren't going to come off instanter.

Whatever you think of the administratoin's policy or lack of policy toward the blind alley brawl in Europe, credit must be given where credit is due, and the policy Jwith regard to the Far East and particularly Japan has thus far been planned and executed with skill. The importance of the Orient in the international picture has not been overlooked, but the bait and the line played out to the Pacific big game fish has been well handled, beautifully timed and with just enough of the slack of appeasement so that fisherman Uncle Sam has not become fouled in his own line and dragged into the drink.

Economically, the actual freezing of Japanese credits and the threat of embargoes on oil and silk have been good pressure to make Tokio stop and consider. Actual embargoes would do the Japanese more harm than sending the fleet to Singapore.

Militarily, Japan is rated third most war-weary country in the world, Spain and Italy alone being ahead of her in that kind of despair. Furthermore, Japan is in the position of the big fish which swallowed the hook and can't spit it out.

She has an army of less than two million—1,600,000 under arms and another 200,000 or so called up. She has the manpower for an army of four million, but can't get the arms or equipment for them. That is, she has 57 divisions under arms and the most she can raise is 66, instead of the potential 200.

Information is perhaps none too accurate, but the best dope is that 10 divisions are in Manchukuo against two red banner armies of the Soviet made up of 26 infantry, 10 cavalry and four mechanized divisions. Thirty-seven Japanese divisions are occupied in China, one is in Korea, one on Sakhalin Island, three or four in Hainan and French Indo-China, and four or five at home. That's what the military experts call extreme dispersion.

Japanese mechanized forces are as bad if not worse than even the American. Japanese air forces of approximately 3600 planes are mostly 1939 models, copies of Ger-

Active operations of reconstructing the plant of the Allegheny Steel Tank Car company, destroyed by fire several months ago, will begin Monday and a crew of 20 carpenters will be put to work. The building and equipment will cost about $20,000 and when ready for operation will give employment to a score or more men.

The following Warren golfers will take part in the Allegheny Golf League tournament at Oil City Friday and Saturday: O. A. Pressel, H. R. Fisher, C. J. Crary, W. J. Richards, Francis Fisher, B. G. Dawes, H. V. Hazeltine, F. G. Schuler, Wm. Smith, Wm. Jacobs, J. C. Holderness.

The list in the political announcements column continues to grow with promise of many more names being added in the next few days. Today D. Curtis Armstrong, Jackson street, throws his hat in the ring for county auditor.

Owing to the fact that the "cannon bill" has been held up, the guns that were to be sent to Warren for Memorial Park will not be shipped for an indefenite period. The cannons were secured through Congressman Bixler.

Several hundred from Warren were in attendance at the thirty-third annual picnic at Snyder's Grove, near Grand Valley, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows' lodge of that place, today. The fact that United States Senator James J. Davis was the speaker served to attract one of the largest crowds in the long history of these outings.

Without a doubt the best game of the year in the Central Mushball League was played last night on the West End Field when Ritchie's Rioters put the Style Shop outfit out of first place.

The contractor for the Pennsylvania avenue east paving job started a large force on the project this morning. Bricks began to fly from the South street end of the avenue today and the work will be rushed to completion.

Perez, Chilean Leader, Fought Revolt and War

JOSE JOAQUIN PEREZ, who rose from a diplomatic career to the presidency of Chile in 1861 weathered some severe storms during his 10-year tenure in office.

Despite opposition attempts to overthrow the government and a series of adverse events, Perez made a sincere effort to set the Chilean house in order. The government honored him philatelically in the 1911 stamp above.

Perez was born in 1800 in Santiago, Chile. He occupied several diplomatic posts, represented his government at both Paris and Buenos Aires.

He was minister of the treasury from 1845-49 and of the interior 1849-51.

On Sept. 18, 1861, he was elected president of Chile, was re-elected in 1866, and served until 1871. Under him, the moderate liberals began to take part in the government.

He endeavored to follow a policy of conciliation both with the Liberals and with the Araucanians, but the latter resented his colonization schemes and defied the government. Their leader, a French adventurer named De Tounens, was arrested and the revolt smashed.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

EIGHTH MONTH

August is the vacation month for many, the forgotten month for others, who call June and July the best summer months. August, like the other months, has its claims to fame, as shown in the following questions:

1. For what famous Roman was the month of August named?
2. What famous explorer sailed West from Spain on a voyage of discovery in August, during the 15th century?
3. An airplane inventor, a recent vice president and two presidents were born in August. Who are they?
4. What vital link in U. S. defenses was opened in August, 1914?
5. The first steamboat sailed on Lake Erie, and the first transcontinental automobile trip were made in the month of August. What years would you say these two events occurred?

Everybody Reads the Times-Mirror

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Before this dries, you are going to be hearing a lot about the CADS. I mean the Civil Air Defense Services.

A national committee headed by Capt. Gill Robb Wilson, who is also president of the National Aeronautic Association, has had plans for the CADS in the works for quite a while. For some reason the national defense people haven't turned on the green light for the CADS, but it's coming.

I saw a preview of the plans the other day. The underlying idea is to organize civilian aviation for an emergency.

Captain Wilson, writing in National Aeronautics magazine, gave a better description of civilian aviation in the United States than I can: "What is it? It is 82,000 certified pilots. It is 50,000 student pilots. It is 25,000 mechanics and airport personnel. It is 3,000,000 model builders. It is a light plane model industry. It is 22,000 certificated civil aircraft. It is 2,000 airports and landing fields outside those serving military and scheduled flying." The list goes on, including all the magazines, journals, and national and local flying organizations.

This is the backlog out of which civilian defense proposes to carve the CADS, with a "Wing" in every state, composed of flights, squadrons and groups in the smaller centers.

New Certificates

THE first step would be to have the Civilian Aeronautics Administration reclassify all airmen's certificates. The new certificates would require proof of citizenship, oath of allegiance to the United States, and such positive identification as fingerprints and photographs. And the first job of the CADS would be to see that no one took off or tightened a nut on an air jalopy without one of the certificates.

From there on, the CADS would take over the job of guarding radio range stations and the 2,000 airports which, not being military or scheduled airline airports, would not ordinarily be subject to military guard. The CADS also would learn how to make these airports unsuitable for enemy use in case of invasion.

A courier service, with men capable of flying everything from bombers and transports to messages in a capsule, would be organized.

A highway traffic patrol would be established in every area where congestion might occur, the CADS patroling such areas and notifying police and military authorities immediately by radio as to where jams were piling up.

Restricted industrial and defense areas would be patrolled constantly.

With the army and navy personnel tied up completely in disaster relief work where airplanes are necessary would be taken over by the civilian flyers.

They would also assist in search for missing military aircraft and give aid to pilots and crews forced down in remote areas.

Would Have To Keep Up

IN ORDER to accomplish all this, the CADS would have to keep their flight training and mechanical skill right up to snuff. The flyers would have to know every inch of terrain in their defense areas as well as that in any nearby areas into which they might be called. They would have to know something about military air maneuvers, types of planes, and a dozen other things with which the ordinary civilian pilot has only a slight speaking acquaintance at present.

A few areas, impatient at governmental delays, already have organized Wings along this line, notably New Jersey, Alabama and Long Island, where Roger Wolfe Kahn, noted sportsman pilot, is taking a lead in forming the group.

With the advice and under authority of state and local defense military authorities, these groups are ready to take the air. According to Captain Wilson, hundreds more will follow the minute they get the green light.

FOREST TRACTS ARE ADDED TO NATIONAL AREA

The National Forest Reservation Commission at its last meeting approved the purchase of 112,870 acres of land consisting of 385 tracts located in 23 states and Puerto Rico. This purchase, Supervisor Hemingway reports, included 14,176 acres on Allegheny National Forest.

A 13,590 acre tract on the Allegheny offered by the Wheeler & Dusenbury Company was the largest single tract approved. It is located in Forest and Warren counties and was cut over some years ago when this company operated a large sawmill at Endeavor.

Two smaller tracts in McKean conty, totaling 336 acres, and one in Elk county of 250 acres were also approved. These latest additions bring the total purchases on Allegheny National Forest to 460,393 acres.

URGE TRUCKERS TO AID IN GAS SAVING PROGRAM

The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, in a bulletin to its members, today listed five ways in which truck operators can aid in the gasoline conservation program.

"It is up to each of you as individuals to accept responsibility for fuel conservation in your fleet," the P. M. T. A. bulletin said.

"As truck operators, here are some of the things you can do:

"1. Make your entire organization gasoline conservation conscious, by meetings, bulletin board announcements, notices, etc.

"2. In the shop adjust all points to give greatest fuel economy. Carburetor adjustments and other tuning-up processes should take into account that 'get-away' is not as important as fuel saving.

"3. In refueling, caution all workers not to fill tank too full, and lose gasoline through spillage.

"4. Don't send out half loads, or duplicate runs to make one or two deliveries. Use one large truck in place of two small ones wherever possible. Run full instead of partial loads to outlying points, if possible, serving them less often. Solicit the cooperation of shippers to have all pick-ups ready at one time.

"5. Drivers should cut off ignition at every stop. Don't leave motor running while parked at curb for deliveries. At stop light, or wherever tied up in traffic, continued 'gunning' of motor uses unnecessary gas. Slow starts can be made in second with less fuel consumption than the accelerated starts made in low."

GROCERIES ..and GUNS

EVERY day we Americans make millions of telephone calls—they may be for groceries or grass seed, pins or paint, coal or cold cream.

But today, there are thousands and thousands of other calls going over our wires—calls concerned with the defense of America! These calls may speed the construction of army camps, the delivery of machine guns and munitions—or even the building of a battleship or bomber!

This new load of telephone traffic is important to every American family. It must get a clear track and full speed ahead!

And so we ask that every telephone user cooperate to keep telephone service smooth and fast!

HERE ARE SOME SUGGESTIONS:

1. Don't trust to memory or to old lists for telephone numbers. It's best to look in the directory and make sure.
2. Answer the telephone promptly.
3. When you make a call, give the called party enough time to answer before "hanging up."
4. Try to avoid unnecessarily long conversations, especially if you are on a party line.
5. Be sure to hang up the instrument after every call. Failure to do so means your line is "busy"—though it may be doing nothing!

Your cooperation will speed the service that speeds defense!

man originals now obsolete, and 750 miles is still the effective range for bombers carrying bombs. From Saigon, French Indo-China, to Singapore is 840 miles and from Formosa or Canton to Manila is about the same. From Vladivostok to Tokio is 680 miles.

That would seem to leave it up to Japan's navy—and a right good navy, too—if Japan is to go places. She can, of course, ride off in all four directions. If she goes north and runs into the Soviet, there is plenty of trouble ahead. She can go farther into China at about the same rate she has gone in the last four years.

She can go south, against the Malay peninsula and Singapore and encounter a great many worries. The occupation of Indo-China can be considered as accomplished, and Japan might even penetrate Siam, but Singapore is something else again. Before Japan can tackle the Dutch East Indies, she must reduce Singapore, and it would take years.

To the east lie the Philippines. They are within range, and if Japan did not have her hands full in three other directions, they would be pie any time she wanted to help herself. Engaged as the Japanese are on three other fronts, a full shooting war, requiring complete coordination of sea, air and land forces, would keep the Japanese gentlemen very busy indeed for quite some time, sank you, prease.

So don't bet on war with Japan tomorrow.

One of the nation's outstanding future military aviation projects, the development of a giant 2000-horsepower in-line, liquid-cooled airplane engine which will be more powerful than any yet built, has reached the production stage.

INSECTS CAUSE LEAF DAMAGING

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—The browning of black locust leaves in Pennsylvania this year did not result from frost but was caused by insects. This damage is particularly noticeable along the Susquehanna river. Research Forester Albert B. Mickalitis, of the Department of Forests and Waters, states that the feeding of locust beetles is responsible for the general brown condition. Grubs of this beetle also produce blister-like spots on the leaves.

The entire foliage of an infested tree may be killed twice in a season which considerably reduces the vigor of the tree, and in some instances causes its death. Since these pests have already done most of their damage, control measures during the current year are not advisable.

In the case of valuable shade trees, the beetle can be controlled by spraying during the month of May with arsenate of lead at the rate of four pounds mixed in fifty gallons of water.

PATTERN 4708

by ANNE ADAMS

This pert little dual-personality style keeps up with the busy pace of a small girl's life. For Pattern 4708 by Anne Adams is designed in two different versions. One is in the peasant trend, with a square neckline and ric-rac edging. The other version is more tailored, with a trim collar. That front buttoning lets mother dress a restless youngster quickly and it makes the frock easy to open out for laundering. The skirt is flaring; the front waist-seams are shaped in spirited points. Either version may have its entire top, with the exception of the button panel, in gay contrast. A pair of neat panties is included in this "must have" style.

Pattern 4708 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, collarless dress, takes 2¼ yards 35 inch fabric; dress with collar, 1⅝ yards 35 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrast.

Chautauqua Institution's Fifth Week Will Bring Many Outstanding Events of Interest

Genuine highlights vie with each other for interest in the fifth week of Chautauqua Institution's season, when the program will include personal appearances of Percy Grainger, concert pianist and composer, and Craig Wood, national open and masters champion in 1941 golf events, and such annual events as "Old First Night" and the now famous choral festival.

The annual series of chamber music directed by Mischa Mischakoff has its second recital and the opera association's last performance of "The Pirates of Penzance" takes place this evening. Following the concert, William S. Bailey will give a stereopticon showing of Chautauqua scenes of long ago, selected from a collection he has made from the work of some of the most famous photographers of the seventies.

Tomorrow night will be the 67th "Old First Night" celebration at the institution, with exercises beginning at 7:30 o'clock in the amphitheatre.

Two sports events of interest are scheduled in this week, the annual Chautauqua tennis tournament from August 4 to 9, and the appearance of Craig Wood on Tuesday afternoon, supported by Ben Hogan, winner of the Vardon Trophy in 1940, Bill Souter, and Charles Eberhardt, formerly of Warren, for an exhibition match on the Chautauqua course.

On Wednesday, dentists of the region will gather for clinical sessions and listen to specialists, with two symphony concerts added to their program. The evening concert will feature Percy Grainger and the matinee will present Mischakoff and Reber Johnson in Bach's concerto for two violins.

Chautauqua's repertory theatre will present the next to the last performance of "Family Portrait" on Thursday, the last showing to be on Saturday night.

Friday marks the first performance of Puccini's "la Boheme", with Susanne Fisher, of the Metropolitan, singing the lead role.

The annual choral festival is scheduled for Saturday. Under the direction of Walter Howe and augmented by Chautauqua's symphony orchestra, eight regional choral groups will participate in the mass singing of well known chorales.

The Masonic Male Chorus, of Warren, O., will appear in the sacred song service next Sunday. Susanne Fisher will make her second appearance of the week, this time with the orchestra.

Preventive Medicine
OR THE SIGNIFICANCE OF Your DOCTOR WANTS TO KEEP YOU WELL

"Your Doctor wants to KEEP you well" is emphatically and literally true, both of the individual physician and of medical scientists in general.

The administration of drugs, surgery and treatment of disease are by no means the sole functions of the modern doctor and scientist. He is just as active in the prevention of disease as in curing it. Spreading the gospel of health rules and hygienic living is prevention of ill-health; establishment of clinics for the control of infant mortality is prevention of unnecessary death; tuberculosis societies and sanitoria, cancer institutes, and hundreds of scientific research bureaus—all are laboring to prevent as well as cure disease.

Prenatal care is to prevent unnecessary suffering and death; school supervision of health is to promote better bodies and minds and prevent disease; all were worked out by doctors in their battle for better health and less sickness.

The proper drainage of mosquito-breeding marshland is prevention, but back of that piece of public-health engineering, the scientist had to discover that malaria was caused by mosquitoes. Administering vaccines and serums prevents smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid, whooping cough and other diseases, but years of patient work by medical men went into perfecting these instruments of "preventive" medicine.

Telling you over and over to "have a complete examination once a year" is "preventive medicine," in that it locates trouble IN TIME and helps your doctor to keep you well. Every year the physician in his daily practice becomes more and more a HEALTH adviser.

St. Louis Browns Trample Over Yankees In Doubleheader

Win Both Games By 4-2 and 5-0; Redbirds Also Cop Twin Bill

BY BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

On this day the particular story is bound to be about pitching, and it could emphasize several kinds, all of them good.

It could go into detail about Bob Feller's 20th victory; or the double-teaming by Mort Cooper and Lon Warneke that added a half game to the St. Louis Cardinals' lead, or the seven-hit hurling of Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt which kept the lead from growing even larger; or the twin shutouts of Cincinnati by Jim Tobin and Johnny Hutchings of the Boston Braves; or the six-hit whitewash of Ted Lyons applied to Washington, for his 243rd White Sox triumph.

All were standout performances, but the biggest palm must go to two elbowers who don't come close to Lyons in experience, to Feller in brilliance or to Cooper and Warneke for victories won.

Right-handers Johnny Niggeling and Bob Harris' labor in the compartive obscurity of the St. Louis Browns.

They caught the attention of the entire baseball world yesterday by stopping the New York Yankees cold.

Niggeling, in the opener of a doubleheader, pitched a four-hitter that beat the American League leaders, 6-2, and broke Charley Ruffing's winning streak of nine straight. He not only kept Joe DiMaggio hitless for the first time in 17 contests, but was the first pitcher in 84 games able to keep the Great Giuseppe from getting on base.

Then Harris came with a handsome two-hitter in the nightcap for a 5-0 shutout, the first Yank blanking since May 30. He also held DiMag without a hit, and completed destruction of another Yankee record—that of not having lost a double-header all season.

Feller's 20th triumph for Cleveland came in the first tilt of a twin bill with the Philadelphia Athletics that drew a record Shibe Park crowd of 40,200. Rapid Robert held the A's to three hits as the Indians won, 6-3. The Tribe missed a chance to pick up two full games on the Yankees by losing the second encounter, 4-3.

Lyons, who didn't walk a man, had 18-hit support from the White Sox in gaining his 9-0 triumph over the Senators.

The Detroit Tigers built up an early lead for Hal Newhouser as he turned back the Boston Red Sox, 6-3.

Cooper, making his first start since June 17, and Warneke, getting his 13th win of the year, combined to hold the Phillies to 11 hits for two 6-1 victories.

The Dodgers, ending their western trip with a four-game winning string, collected 15 hits in beating the Cubs 10-2.

For the Boston Braves it was five-hit pitching by Tobin and a three-hit job by Hutchings that blanked the Cincinnati Reds, 5-0 and 3-0. The New York Giants relapsed into their losing ways as they bowed to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-4 and 10-4, the latter in only six innings because of the Pennsylvania Sunday curfew.

U. S. C. COACH NAMED

Los Angeles, Aug. 4—(AP)—The Los Angeles Times said today it had learned from an authoritative source that Justin M. (Sam) Barry had accepted the position of head coach of football at the University of Southern California.

He would succeed Howard Jones, who died July 27.

Barry has been the Trojan basketball and baseball coach.

HAMBLETONIAN CLASSIC TO BE RUN WEDNESDAY

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 4—(AP)—A long shot was the first official entrant today for Wednesday's renewal of the classic Hambletonian trotting stake at Good Time Park.

Even before the track's meeting opened this afternoon, Sullivan and Newhinney of Machias, Me., deposited a $500 check at the secretary's office as the starting fee for their brown filly, Merwynna, in the Hambletonian.

The optimistic prediction was that 10 or 11 three-year-olds would pull their sulkies to the starting line for a crack at the $45,000 jackpot.

Trotters definitely expected to answer the call are the favored Bill Gallon, from the stable of R. H. Johnson of Charlotte, N. C.; Perpetual, well-regarded hope of Doc Parshall for his third Hambletonian triumph; Florimel, local favorite from the Arden Homestead stable; Fast Train, owned by E. T. Gerry, of New York, state harness racing commissioner; His Excellency, owned by William Strang of Brooklyn, and Lucy Hanover, from the Hanover (Pa.) Shoe Farms.

Others which may be in the field include Double Guy, chestnut son of Guy Day, owned by Dr. Anderson Arbury of Midland, Mich; Colleen Scott, from the barn of the veteran Kentuckian, Ben White, and Fay, owned by Harkness Edwards of Donerail, Ky. There is a possibility, too, that Dunbar Bostwick, the New York sportsman, might start Hollyrood Anna.

Pittsburgh Steeler Gridders Practicing

Hershey, Aug. 4—(AP)—Coaches Bert Bell and Walter Kiesling sent the Pittsburgh Steelers through heavy gridiron work at the Hershey Stadium practice field over the week-end, in advance preparation for the first inter-squad game here Friday night.

Looking especially good in the week-end practice sessions was Art Jones, towering tailback, who joined the squad in time for Saturday's drill. Jones, triple-threat back with the University of Richmond during the past three seasons, is expected to handle the passing assignments for the Steelers during the coming National Professional League season.

Also impressive in the scrimmage sessions was Boyd Brumbaugh, former Duquesne University fullback, who is starting his fourth year in professional football.

WE REVIEW THE SUMMER SPORTS

As football will be our main topic in this column and on this page within a couple of weeks, it seems that this is a good time to review the summer's sports activities, as closely as our record books can recall, and that should be close enough, don't you think? It hasn't been an exceptionally busy summer in the way of sports, and yet it hasn't been exactly dull. So, if you can bear it for the next few moments, we'll review for you the various progress made in sports in the community.

BASEBALL—This has been taken care of nicely in three departments, with a fourth adding to the cause a little bit. The National Forge has presented most of the entertainment for fans in this section and has won thirteen games against four defeats. Their victims in order are: St. Marys Colts, two games; Erie White Sox, two games away from home; Wellsville; Jungle Giants; Warren, O., two; Akron Goodyear; Ford City, two; Endicott, N. Y., two. And the Irvine crew lost twice to Wellsville and once to both the Homestead Grays and the Akron Killian Celtics, whom they play again next Sunday. "Emmy" Morrison leads the batting with .433. Then there's the Marconi club, with an interest in the leadership of the Interstate League, and the State Hospital, which has produced some fine Saturday ball. The Eagles are the fourth department and, while they haven't played an awful lot, own a fine ball club.

GOLF—The sixth annual county golf championship tourney was held and "Chink" Collins retained the toga, beating a field of thirty to come home winner. "Doc" Graves was third and Jack Zerres fourth, while a 16-year-old Jamestown clubber took second. The Conewango Valley, Kinzua and Maplehurst golf clubs have all been busy this year, with favorable weather helping them have an exceptionally good summer. The county tourney, incidentally, was held over the Maplehurst course, which is one of the nicest nine-hole layouts in this section. But more about golf. "Doc" Graves retained his State Dental Association golf title when the association held its annual meeting at Bedford Springs and the tourney was held at the same time. If the local dentist wins next year, he can retire the trophy awarded.

SOFTBALL—The City League has held the interest of softball fans this season and now is starting its last week, except for the playoffs. There was a complication, due to rained out games, in the first half which hasn't been cleared up and the second half is still not definitely settled, though the K. of C. holds the inside track at present. This week's games will decide the second half winner and the first half winner will be decided by an elimination, with the two playing for the championship. Softball, however, did not scale the heights expected of it this campaign.

TENNIS—Tennis has been slow this year, though the "Y" has built a new court and the hospital court was given to the playgrounds. But in this month of August, Physical Director Ed. Hasler hopes to conclude the present tourney, which is running overtime, and get a bigger tournament started. Also he plans to get some team matches for the YMCA team. Meanwhile, Playgrounds Director H. G. Kolpien also is planning a tournament which will be a city-wide affair to be held on the hospital court and possibly the "Y" court, if it can be arranged. So tennis may come into its own before fall officially arrives.

And that about winds up all the community sports for the summer program, which leaves this desk fairly clean and ready to start with football, both pro and scholastic, and everything else that goes with it, come the middle of this month and thereafter. The Red Jackets will be conditioning in a couple of weeks and the schoolboys will start their grinds August 25. And we believe it'll feel kind of good to exchange base hits for a few touchdowns, though we can't honestly hold any grudge against the efforts of the baseball teams this summer. They've done very well, considering the handicaps and all.

ASHVILLE WINS OVER HOSPITAL IN HIT SPREE

Glancing at the score you might think it was an early season football game, but, no, it was only that wild affair of so-called baseball at the North Warren diamond Saturday when the Ashville, N. Y., nine registered a 20-12 defeat of the State Hospital aggregation.

Both sides had two touchdowns (twelve runs) at the end of the regulation nine innings, but an eight run onslaught in the top half of the tenth by the visitors and North Warren hopes sagged like a victim of one of Joe Louis' "kills."

Jim Rose pitched for the losers and L. Brown tossed for the winners. Neither was exactly impressive, both sides seeming to hit about at will, but Ashville managed to pole out no less than five home runs which mainly settled the issue.

The winners had eighteen safe knocks; North Warren claimed seventeen. Every man on the Ashville club hit and scored at least once.

"Otie" Marlett, who has been out for a month with a dislocated shoulder, returned to the lineup for the Hospital Sunday only to injure it again when he and the first baseman fell over the sack while Marlett was trying to get back to first on a throw from the pitcher to the first baseman.

"Rabbit" Swanson rapped out four singles for a perfect day at bat which might have been useful had it not been that four errors tossed the lead away several times giving Ashville added life.

WOOD BEATS GHEZZI FOR MYTHICAL TITLE

Girard, O., Aug. 4—(AP)—Craig Wood, covering up his 39 years with youthful vigor, today reigned over the world of golf as a climax to one of the greatest comebacks in the history of the game.

Winner of the National Open and Masters' tournaments, but eliminated in the P. G. A. classic as he sought the coveted "triple," the blond veteran took the shortest detour to his goal.

Shooting nine under par, he walloped Vic Ghezzi, the pro king, in a special 72-hole match for the unofficial world championship. Besides the mythical title, the 5 and 4 victory gave Wood $2,500.

Jamestown Loses To Warren Old Timers Again By 9-8 Score

It wasn't that Jamestown was lacking in reserve material, but rather seven wild pitches that turned the tide toward Warren's second old timer victory in eight days over the New York state crew yesterday at Wilder Field, Irvine.

As it was, in the first of the seventh and last inning, the visitors nearly tied the score with a three run rally on two hits and an error. The error cost two runs and the second hit brought home the hilltoppers' eighth tally.

There were lots of highlights throughout the contest, including Wilkinson's first inning meat hand stop of Spetz's hit for the second out, and "Paddy" Jackson's little legs hustling after a foul ball which bounced out of his glove after all that effort.

In regard to the game's success as a benefit for the U. S. O., it was fairly successful, but the crowd wasn't quite as large as was anticipated, though there were 179 paid admissions at the gate and nearly a hundred extra persons who bought tickets beforehand, therefore bringing the net proceeds up to a figure near $100.

The victory left the two teams standing with two wins for Warren, both this year, and one for Jamestown which they earned last summer.

Joe Gardner was the day's leading hitter for Warren with two for two, both singles. Pike Peterson was credited with the victory, and LeDestro was the loser.

Next Sunday the Akron Killian Celtics, who defeated the Forge a couple of weeks ago at Irvine, will return to try and duplicate the feat. The Celts made a reputation for themselves in this section as being one of the finest clubs to play ball in this vicinity in some time, and a big crowd is expected to watch the Forgers in an effort to gain revenge over their recent conquerors.

FORGERS WHIP CHAUTAUQUA BY SCORE OF 8-5

In a special game at Chautauqua Saturday afternoon the National Forge continued to better its record for the season with an 8-5 triumph over the Chautauqua ball club.

Three runs in the first, two in the third, and three more in the ninth gave the Forgers a comfortable margin. Chautauqua scored four times in the fifth and once in the ninth.

"Diz" Hines did the tossing for Irvine with Mack and Steve Massa dividing the chores behind the bat.

Next Sunday at Irvine the Forge will seek vengenace against the Akron Killian Celtics in a single game. The Celts beat Irvine at Wilder Field three weeks ago.

However, Nemacolin can annex the championship with a single victory over Brackenridge.

MADE UP TO KILL

By Kelley Roos

Chapter Seven

"Author, Author"

"NO," said Detective Peterson, "they don't know anything about it at all. And that's about as far as I've got on this case. They was talking to the checkroom girl all during the second act intermission. I checked on him as soon as I saw him in your apartment this morning."

Jeff's mouth fell open. "Checked up on me? Why?"

"Because," Peterson said, "you look like the type that would poison a girl."

Jeff stared at him speechless and then at the rest of us for reassurance. We couldn't help laughing and it felt good to laugh.

At the wall mirror Jeff inspected his "face mitument," as though he had never noticed it before. He rubbed his chin. "It's because I need a shave. I always look like the killer type when I need a shave." His confidence in himself seemed to have been restored.

"Peterson," Bowers said, "what is this Lee Gray business about?"

The detective smoothed open the paper that he still held in his hand. "We found this note in Carol Blanton's purse. It seems to be a warning. It says, 'Meet me in front of the Broadhurst. I have got to see you right after the play. I can't tell you in a note what this means. It's signed Lee Gray. This Lee Gray might have known what was in store for Miss Blanton and this note might be meant for a warning. And then again it mightn't be. But I think it is."

"I said sweetly: "Wouldn't it be a good idea to ask Carol who Lee Gray is? After all, it was sent to her; she's the one who's likely to know."

"I'm going to ask her, Miss Rogers. Just as soon as she's able to answer."

We all turned at the creaking of the door. The man who stood there seemed to me the tallest man I'd ever seen. His parents, I thought inanely, must have been Basil Rathbone and a skyscraper. Perhaps it was partly because he was thin and long-necked and held his head so unbelievably high that he seemed so towering. He had brown hair and heavy-lidded eyes that were speckled colored, like tweed, and his mouth was thin and unpleasant.

I heard Clint Bowers say, "It's Mr. Morris, isn't it?" and I felt a nervous little tingle that was quickly followed by a surge of disappointment.

So this was our author. This was England's pet playwright. I hadn't expected him to look like that. He smiled with an obviously forced politeness as Bowers introduced us all to him. The smile didn't make him any prettier. Bowers ushered him into a chair and held out a cigarette box. Taking a cigarette, Morris glanced at the brand and pointedly replaced it. His eyes roved the room and stopped at the detective.

"Mr. Peterson?" Somehow he managed even when he sat to give the impression of looking down on the people standing around him. "Peterson of the police. It was you who shattered my ears with a telephone call at ten this morning."

Peterson nodded. "Thanks for getting here."

"I was coming regardless of your request. It's a coincidence, I assure you. Now what is this about someone being poisoned? Someone besides the entire audience, I mean?"

We sat in startled silence. Phoebe turned sharply, her eyes blazing to stare at him. Even Peterson was stopped by the colossal rudeness of this man who sat smiling, apparently oblivious of the shrapnel he had burst at us.

In a voice not quite level, Bowers said, "Carol Blanton was poisoned last night on the stage. There was morphine in the glass she drank from."

"Blanton? Which one was that?"

"The little girl who played Dina."

The Great Man

A SHADE of something that might have been annoyance swept over his face. "That's really too bad. She seemed to have some idea of what my play was about."

Peterson had had enough of that. He stood in front of Morris and, with both hands in his pockets, seemed to point a shaking finger in his face. "Who is Lee Gray?"

Morris lit a cigarette that he extracted from his pocket and smiled through a cloud of smoke. "I see. The direct method. Well, Lee Gray, is that the name? Sorry, Mr. Peterson, I've never heard of her."

We could hear Phoebe catch her breath. "Of her! Of her, did you say? Is Lee Gray . . ."

Peterson was eyeing Morris curiously. "Yes. It's a woman. The handwriting is definitely feminine. How did you know, Mr. Morris, that Lee Gray was a woman?"

Morris was annoyed. "I choose my pronouns at random, Mr. Peterson. The name Lee is a very common female name in England. So common that I shouldn't think of knowing anyone by that name."

"Is this your first visit to America?"

"Are there people who come here twice?"

From the way the detective looked at him then I could tell he wouldn't be inviting him out for Sunday dinner. Daggers were beginning to shuttle between them. "I'd like you to stay in New York until we get this business straightened out, Morris."

"Sorry, I have other plans."

"What other plans?"

Bowers was between them. "Surely, Mr. Peterson, you're not trying to connect Mr. Morris in any way with what happened here last night? He only arrived in New York late yesterday afternoon."

"That was in plenty of time."

"He's had absolutely nothing to do with this production. He's never seen Miss Blanton, nor any of the people connected with Green Apples, for that matter, before last night. Isn't that right?"

"I assure you," Morris said in a smiling voice, "that if I had, my play should have been very differently cast. A— I suspected of having poisoned this Miss Blanton."

Bowers interrupted quickly. "Of court not, Mr. Morris. It's merely . . . merely police routine more or less. Mr. Peterson has already established the fact that the poisoning was done by . . . by a member of our company and not by any outsider. That's so, isn't it, Mr. Peterson?"

Peterson nodded. "Right." He smiled complacently at our playwright. "However, Mr. Morris is not an outsider and I am including him in the company. He knew this play as well as anyone in the company. We know that it was possible for him to have been backstage during that intermission. I'm afraid, Mr. Morris, that right now you are as much a suspect as anyone who belonged backstage."

Morris seemed thoroughly amused. "Really, Officer, the only thing in which I'm interested is the theater. And the poisoning of one ingenue wouldn't help the American theater much."

"Apparently you didn't care for our production." Clint Bowers said. The deep hurt stood out on his face and cut through his voice. "It got rather good reviews."

"And Mr. Bowers got raves for his direction." Phoebe put in stanchly, but her lips trembled at the corners.

"Oh, was it directed?"

Carol Again

HATE flared in Phoebe's eyes as her face went white. The pencil she had been toying with cracked like a birthday party snapper in the silence of the room.

"Tell me, Bowers," Morris continued. "This Eve North. Why? Is she your mother?"

I couldn't bring myself to look at Bowers then, nor Phoebe, or anyone. All New York had been asking that question, I guess, but they hadn't used the word "mother." And no one had used it anywhere but behind Clint Bowers' back. When he spoke at last his voice was calm.

"I think that the critics were most unfair to Eve. She held the whole play together without starring herself. If, at times she looked bad it was only to make someone else seem good. Eve North is the most unselfish actress I have ever known."

Morris shrugged. "Well, of course, I hope you have a run. After all, it is my play, although I scarcely recognized it."

"We'll try to do better for you tonight," I said bitterly.

"Please do. Only not for me. I'm leaving for Hollywood on the five o'clock plane. They've offered me more money than I knew existed and, although I'm fairly sure I'll loath it, I'm rather anxious to go."

"You'll stay in town," Peterson sounded like a burlesque on a tough cop, but he didn't look like one. "You'll do me that favor, Mr. Morris, so I won't have to go to the trouble of making you."

Morris looked at him through half-closed eyes. "Very well. Only I make one stipulation. I absolutely refuse to subject myself to another performance of Green Apples."

"You don't have to subject yourself to anything but New York."

The policeman flipped his hat on the back of his head and opened the door. Facing him was a pale little girl in a navy-blue suit and a turned-up hat.

We sat and stared at her as if she were a ghost. She put up one hand and grasped the open door but made no other move. Her eyes swept over the room. For a moment I thought that she would turn and disappear as suddenly and quietly as she had come.

And then we came to, and Bowers was dragging out a chair for her and Jeff was trying to make her drink a glass of water and Phoebe fluttered around helplessly. There was a hasty blurred introduction to Greeley Morris and everyone asked questions that no one tried to answer.

Carol said: "There's a taxi waiting downstairs. I didn't have any money."

Jeff took charge. "Let it wait. You tell us why you're running around the streets like this. When did you leave the hospital? Why aren't you in bed taking care of yourself?"

Carol smiled. Under her eyes were dark purple hollows and her mouth seemed tight and thin. "I'm all right, Jeff. And they discharged me at the hospital; I didn't escape. I'm not running around the streets, either. I just stopped in to tell Mr. Bowers that I could play tonight."

Talk of Major Shortage of Sheer Hose Is Decried by Manufacturers

nation's women to stock up on silk hosiery, rayon yarn producers operated today under government orders to earmark 10 per cent of their output for silk users affected by a stop-production command from defense officials.

The purpose of the rayon order, the office of Price Administration and Supply explained, was to "avert complete dislocation" of the $250,000,000 silk processing industry and its 175,000 workers.

Hosiery mills will get 70 per cent of the rayon yarn set aside and the remaining 30 per cent will go to adjust hardships of present rayon customers or to manufacturers who had been using silk for other purposes than making hosiery.

Hosiery makers looked in vain for succor by the nylon industry, already working on huge backlogs of wholesale orders.

way, and in the Baltic and Black Seas.

It declared that Soviet submarines, attacking off the far north Norwegian island port of Vardo, sank an 8,000-ton German steamer "laden with arms and ammunition for the German-Finnish army."

The Russians also reported a German or Finnish submarine sunk in the Baltic, where Red navy torpedo boats were credited during the weekend with sinking 18,000 tons of German transports and tankers.

The communique declared, too, that during an aerial attack the night of August 1 Russian bombs exploded on docks at the Black Sea port of Constanta, where a German destroyer was anchored and damaged other shipping in the port.

On the battlefront the weekend brought a strong new pincers attack aimed at Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

The Russians declared the attempt to wrest from Russia the golden wealth of Ukraine wheat had failed because the Germans were unable to sweep in with the speed the coup would have required.

The fields already are golden ripe and the harvest, speeded by worker groups behind the lines, was reported flowing rapidly into granaries to be taken far back to safety.

Nazis Declare Railroads Are Being Cut Off

(From Page One)

On the southern flank:

The daily war bulletin said swift, deep stabs by German and Hungarian schnell truppen—(speed troops)—have cut off important Russian rail connections, and other dispatches indicated that the greatest German progress on the eastern front was through the ripening grain fields of the southern Ukraine, far below the provincial capital of Kiev.

Unofficial reports told of numerous "new encirclements" by tanks slashing through faltering Russian lines south of Kiev.

(The Russians have acknowledged new Nazi penetrations in the Ukraine, but declare the offensive has failed because the Germans lacked necessary speed to consolidate thetir gains. Two sides of a German nutcracker around Kiev, however, are admitted to be near Korosten, 80 miles to the northwest, and Bel Tserkov, a bare 50 miles to the south.

There was no indication of the number of Russians claimed to be caught in the German pockets in the Smolensk salient but other communiques have told of Soviet forces isolated, surrounded and wiped out by one.

As for the northern sector, Sunday's High Command communique said 10,000 Russians were captured west of Lake Peipus in Estonia along with many tanks, cannon and supplies.

Adding to this, DNB said advancing Nazis captured vital territory, killed 2,300 Russians and seized thousands of prisoners and 71 tanks in an unstated northern area.

It told furthermore of the capture of the commanding general of a Red army corps, but did not give his name.

Another guarded claim was that a fractional but nonetheless important part of the outer defenses of Leningrad had been "liquidated."

Frontline dispatches stressed that everywhere the Russians were resisting bitterly and incurring heavy losses. There were intimations, too, that the campaign in the east was costing the Germans many sacrifices.

DECLARES GERMANY READY TO COLLAPSE

London, Aug. 4—(AP)—Camille Gutt, finance minister of the Belgian government in exile, in a BBC broadcast tonight said he believed that a sudden German collapse "is no longer so far off."

"We have now started on the road to victory," he said. "Nobody can name the dates, but the day is no longer so far off when the Germans, realizing as in 1918, their losses, their failures, their shame, will crack up all of a sudden, and collapse because, let us not forget it, they are the same as 27 years ago."

Gutt said the German people "did not believe Russia would put up a fight, and God, how she fights."

BURGLARIES ADMITTED BY TWO ALTOONA MEN

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 4—(AP)—Police Lieut. L. W. F. Haberstroh said today that during two days of questioning two men had admitted staging a series of burglaries while driving from Ardmore to Altoona last week.

Haberstroh said the men still are being questioned and that he will not file formal charges until the police investigation is completed. He accused the men of thefts at Ardmore, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Lewistown, Huntingdon and Altoona. A map on which the men marked out their trip showed they also visited Bethlehem, Allentown, Berwick and Bloomsburg, he said. Two Ardmore detectives came here to file a detainer against them on burglary charges.

GUNMAN KILLS THREE IN SEATTLE SALOON

Seattle, Aug. 4—(AP)—A jitter-fingered gunman cut loose with deadly bursts of pistol fire in a dingy little night club saloon just before daybreak Sunday and, when the smoke cleared there were three dead men sprawled around the bar and seven others, including the gunman, lay wounded.

Just what mental quirk caused the gunman, who entered the basement club with the admitted intention of robbing it, to abruptly start firing into the crowd around the bar was something that had not been explained. No one, apparently, made any attempt to resist.

Slain were Monte F. Brown, 61, vice president of the Seattle Daily Journal of Commerce; Gus Galmatos, 48, bartender, and John Linder, a bystander.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Aug. 4—(AP)—Wheat prices advanced almost two cents in early dealings today as the market continued to absorb buying inspired by price control legislation pending in Congress. With all futures the highest since 1937, May 1942 contracts at one time sold above $1.15, or the loan rate in Chicago.

Opening ½-1⅞ higher, September 1.09½, December 1.12⅛-⅝, wheat later advanced further. Corn started ½-⅜ up, September 77, December 79¾.

DEALINGS SLOW ON STOCK MART

New York, Aug. 4—(AP)—Specialized bidding was the rule in today's stock exchange and many leaders were neglected.

Rails were up at intervals, but steels huddled in the rear ranks from the start. Prices were irregular near the final hour but variations mostly were in fractions. Dealings were relatively slow, transfers for the full proceedings being at the rate of about 600,000 shares.

Around New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—People ask me, "What is this Miguelito Valdes like?"

That was a stumper. I didn't know who Miguelito Valdes was. Then someone wrote in from Ohio and wanted to know if he was in "Panama Hattie."

No, he isn't in "Panama Hattie," but when I heard the name again I thought I'd better find out about him. I'm supposed to know a little of what goes on in this town. It seemed for a moment a new hero had zoomed up and everybody but this department knew all about him.

WE FOUND him with that old Spaniard and caricaturist, Xavier Cugat. Have you got a pencil? You can take him right off our notes and you'll know all about him:

Miguelito Valdes is 73 inches tall and weighs 197. . . . He has long, straight, jet black hair. . . . He looks, and sings, like a suddenly tamed and happy ex-savage.

Mike—let's call him Mike for short—is a "tabu" singer . . . His specialty and stock in trade are Afro-Cuban melodies, with the half wild chant of the veldt and the rhythmic tonal gyrations of the West Indies.

He was born in Havana, son of a Mexican mother and a Spanish-Cuban father. . . . He got his physique on the Havana docks, indulging in occasional pier brawls and competing in almost daily "concurso" contests. . . . This is a pastime where contestants try to sing each other down. . . . In some of our more elegant night club precincts in New York, we call this coon-shouting.

But on the Havana docks they shouted in impromptu coinages and improvised verses. . . . He shouted to the tunes of small drums, or to maracas, claves or guitars. . . . Sometimes to the tune of all at once.

THEN Mike got the urge to become a prizefighter. He read an account of how much coin Joe Louis gets for one of his matches, and he started out to emulate him. To make a long story short, Mike did not attain the title. . . . But he did become a corking good guitarist, and a singer of Latin tunes.

Now you see and hear him with Cugat. . . . If you are in New York, you find him at the Waldorf. . . . If you are elsewhere, you can find him on the radio with Cugat or in the phonograph record shops. . . .

Some of his best known numbers are "Bruce Manigua," "Macumije," "Babalu," and "Negras Leonor."

Mike has only been in the United States a year. . . . His English is not good, but neither is it bad. . . . He is fascinated by New York's styles in tailoring, and his wardrobe grows alarmingly.

In fact, he likes it here so well he thinks he'll stay.

Carmen Lombardo, brother of Guy Lombardo, the orchestra leader, has altered his style of singing . . . He has honed off the edges of those harsh R's and taken the quiver out of his voice. . . . Bravo!

STATE FORESTS PROVE POPULAR FOR PICNICKERS

Harrisburg, Aug. 4—The trend of campers and tourists to state forest recreational areas this summer is far greater than at any time in the history of the department, according to John R. Williams, director of parks, Department of Forests and Waters.

For those who spend the weekend in rest and recreation, and their vacations in the open, many pleasant camp sites may be found within the 1,654,000 acres of state forests. No "Keep Out" signs are found within the state forests. Those who take their cameras into the woods will find countless opportunities for photographing game and birds in their native haunts, and a paradise for the scenic photographer.

The department maintains 192 cabins within the recreational areas which may be rented for a limited number of days not exceeding 15. Demands for these cabins have been so great that all have been rented for the entire summer season.

The possibilities for camping, nature study, and exploration of the state forests are so great that many visitors return year after year, seeking out new grounds, never covering the same areas twice. The state forests afford the best scenery and the best camp grounds and are easily reached from the main highways. The visitor of moderate means is not required to finance an expensive western or northern trip, but may enjoy the advantage of some scenic portions of Pennsylvania within a day's travel.

There are now 3401 permanent camp sites on the state forests leased by citizens of Pennsylvania at nominal rates. With each of these camp sites goes about one-fourth acre of land. This means that more than 800 acres of the state forests are leased to campers, hunters, fishermen and other people who enjoy the outdoors in the forests of the commonwealth.

★AMERICANA★ INDIAN LEGENDS ★

By RAY PEACOCK

AP Feature Service Writer

NO town in America leads a well-rounded existence without an Indian legend . . . a legend complete with a tree-grown spot where one may stand and say impressively, "Here, this is where it happened."

Who cares whether the legend is true, or that almost all Indian legends sound alike? Grant me the right to believe the one about my town, and I'll believe the one about yours.

Mine is about a Wisconsin village on the Mississippi, a tiny place called Maiden Rock, and there it was on a high bluff overlooking the river—my grandmother taught me to believe—that fair Wenona, daughter of Red Wing, leaped to the rocks below so that she could join young White Eagle in the happy hunting grounds.

Of course it reads like your town's legend, and why not? The dramatic motivation for most of them is love for an enemy (i.e., member of a rival tribe) or conflict between mortal and immortal (being of the days when the spirits enjoyed a greater prestige than at present).

It's a good story and it always has been a good story, one that novelists have been hacking away at ever since Adam first needed an alibi and discovered the value of an imagination.

The same sort of thing could happen today. White Eagle's trouble was that he belonged to the wrong party. He was a Chippewa, and Red Wing, who was a Dakota, wanted him to stay the hell out of his ward. I've stood on the very spot where the Dakotas liquidated White Eagle with an arrow, stood where Wenona leaped. And it's a nasty drop.

Other people also must have believed the legend, for most of the major and minor members of the cast had cities and towns named after them. All but poor White Eagle. He was forgotten for a long time. Then they named a gasoline after him.
